VICTIM HOSPITALIZED

Borough police officer Edward Peterson kneels beside injured Harry R. Calhoun, 30, 12 School St., North Warren, following an accident on Pennsylvania Ave. E. Thursday night. Calhoun was the driver of the car which crashed into a parked car causing an estimated total damage of $3,400.

according to investigating police officer James W. Neall. Calhoun, who, police said, will be charged with reckless driving, was admitted to Warren General Hospital with a possible jaw fracture and lacerations of the chin, according to a hospital spokesman. (Photo by Mahan)

Ky Plans to Accompany Army When It Marches North

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who led a 24-plane squadron in the first South Vietnamese air raid against North Vietnam Feb. 8, 1965, said Thursday he will accompany a projected invasion army if and when it marches north.

"We have to shed our own blood to bring about the success of our country, not depend on the assistance of the allied forces," Ky said in a speech to Roman Catholic villagers 15 miles north of Saigon.

"To say 'Down with the Communists' is not enough. You have to say 'Down with the Communists, Communist henchmen and colonialists.' We will kill all of them and not let one remain alive.

"If necessary I will be the first. I will sacrifice myself."

A Buddhist who once lived in Hanoi, the former air force commander and ex-premier told the Catholics: "If all the people are like you, with your spirit of anticommunism, we will liberate North Vietnam, we will reunify our country and we will return to our fatherland."

Most of almost a million Vietnamese who fled south after the division of Vietnam under the Geneva agreement in 1954 were Roman Catholics. The Catholics constitute one of the most militantly anti-Communist groups in this largely Buddhist nation.

They in turn rank high among Viet Cong terrorist targets.

The Vatican newspaper

L'Osservatore Romano said Wednesday the Viet Cong killed hundreds of Roman Catholics at Hue during their occupation of much of that old imperial capital last month and forced student priests to study Marxism. Four priests and a nun are numbered among civilian dead of the lunar new year offensive.

Since allied forces cleared the enemy troops from the last of the cities they entered in that offensive, the Saigon government has been arming self-defense units in various villages

Castro Hints He May Hold Hijacked Planes in Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro hinted Thursday that in the future he may not allow hijacked airliners to return to the United States.

The Cuban prime minister said in a speech that Cuba has the right to keep such planes since, he claimed, the United States has not returned boats hijacked or stolen in Cuba by refugees fleeing to the United States.

He suggested that the Swiss embassy start negotiations for the return of such boats.

But in Washington, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said it is U.S. policy to return to Cuba all seaworthy boats and planes in which defectors travel to the United States. And he said it would be a matter of concern if Castro should adopt a policy of seizing American airliners or ships which had been taken to Cuba at gunpoint.

Castro's remarks were quoted in official Havana radio newscasts.

Referring to Tuesday's hijacking of a National Airlines plane from Florida to Havana, Castro said: "Three men who left Cuba got bored and brought a plane here. This prompts us to remind the imperialists that they have a sizable number of our small boats and planes.

"We are returning their craft, without them returning ours. This should not be."

Castro added: "It could happen that we will not bother to return to them any further craft."

Referring to the frequent hijacking of boats to flee from Cuba to the United States, Castro said: "There they have received murderers who have murdered crewmen of embarking boats. True, they are rickety boats, but it is a moral problem."

Castro said the Swiss embassy should take steps to have "these junk boats" loaded on a ship and transported to Cuba. The Cuban Refugee Center in Miami, Fla., reported 10,026 refugees arriving in a total of 1,113 boats have registered at the U.S. center since its establishment in June 1961. In addition, a few Cubans also flew to the United States in stolen crop duster planes several years ago.

The National Airlines plane, en route from San Francisco to Miami, was the third commercial airliner hijacked to Havana within 20 days.

Fifty-eight persons aboard were flown to Havana. Three Cuban exiles who boarded at Tampa, Fla., remained in Havana. They have been charged with piracy and conspiracy by the FBI.

A conference to discuss methods of preventing so-called sky-jackings was planned in Miami.

International Meeting Called On Gold Frenzy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The frenzied European gold rush touched off a series of rapid-fire developments on both sides of the Atlantic Thursday, including a tighter clamp on U.S. credit and the temporary closing of the London gold market.

The financial crisis appeared to be the worst since the stock market crash of 1929.

An international meeting was scheduled in Washington for Saturday to review the gold frenzy as the United States asserted its determination to maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce and thus avoid devaluation of the dollar.

To back up this commitment, the Senate Thursday night completed congressional action by a 39-37 vote on a bill to remove the 25 per cent gold backing for paper money, thus freeing the nation's entire gold stock—now about $11.4 billion—to back the dollar overseas.

In reasserting its determination to hold the price of gold at $35 an ounce, the United States described closing of the London market as temporary. But there was no immediate estimate how long this meant.

A statement reaffirming the U.S. position was issued shortly after 8:30 p.m. EST by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and chairman William McChesney Martin Jr., of the Federal Reserve Board.

They said the central bank governors of the London Gold Pool nations had been invited to a meeting Saturday on "coordinated measures to ensure orderly conditions in the exchange markets and to support the present pattern of exchange rates based on the fixed price of $35 per ounce of gold."

Nations to be represented are the United Kingdom, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the United States.

Among them, they supply the gold sold through the London market with the United States picking up the lion's share—59 per cent.

The Senate sent the gold cover removal bill to President Johnson on a 39-37 vote.

Once the measure is signed into law, the entire U.S. gold stock—now about $11.4 billion—will be freed to meet the nation's pledge to convert dollar holdings to gold at the rate of $35 an ounce.

At present there is only about $1 billion of free gold since the reserve requirements tie up approximately $10.4 billion of the supply.

Fowler Wants Income Taxes Boosted Within 30 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing the rush on gold and increasing costs of the war in Vietnam, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said Thursday it is necessary that Congress boost income taxes within 30 days.

But his recommendation that taxes be increased twice as much as the 10 per cent surcharge proposed by President Johnson last August made no noticeable impact on the man most responsible for congressional inaction.

"I don't have enough information to comment one way or the other," said Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee when asked about Fowler's statement.

Johnson's surtax proposal is bottled up in Mills' committee. Asked by newsmen whether there might be another meeting on it soon, Mills replied: "It is always before us."

But he said Fowler, in a closed session with the committee Thursday, did not discuss the income surtax.

Fowler made his plea for a quick, hefty tax boost before the

Financial Crisis Worst Since Crash of 1929

Under present law, each $1 in federal reserve notes—the only paper money now made—must be backed by 25 cents in gold.

The bill, sought urgently by the administration, completely wipes out this cover requirement which has existed since the Federal Reserve Act was passed 55 years ago.

Administration forces in the Senate had been pleading for three days for quick passage of the bill.

Queen Proclaims Special British Bank Holiday

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II proclaimed a special British bank holiday for Friday after a frenzied day of gold buying in Western Europe.

Political sources said Britain acted in response to a message from President Johnson late Thursday night on the emergency hot line connecting the White House with No. 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's residence.

The London stock market also will be closed for the day, and in New York a spokesman said the New York stock exchange will open, but will announce any change in plans.

Details of Johnson's reported message were not available, but informed sources said U.S. authorities asked the British to close their gold market, biggest in the world, to forestall further disorder.

The British Treasury said an international meeting, presumably the gold pool meeting, will be held in Washington on Saturday.

The frantic rush for gold Thursday plunged the pound sterling to a historic low in London and weakened the dollar in all major money markets but Paris.

The Queen's proclamation followed a Privy Council meeting at Buckingham Palace with Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins and Economics Affairs Secretary Pete Shore attending.

British banks will only supply domestic customers with normal cash requirements in sterling.

Gold buying in Western Europe hit a record high Thursday despite the efforts of dealers to check the stampede to get rid of paper money.

Bankers, dealers and economists said that only determined, positive action by the U.S.

FRB Clamps Tight Rein on Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an attempt to stem the European gold buying fever, the Federal Reserve Board Thursday clamped a tighter reign on credit by raising the discount rate to 5 per cent.

The present rate is 4.5 per cent and the new rate is the highest since just before the 1929 stock market crash.

The board, in announcing its action just after 6 p.m., said the increase is designed "to strengthen the international position of the dollar and to curb inflationary pressures in the domestic economy."

Stock Exchange May Close

NEW YORK (AP) — A spokesman for the New York Stock Exchange issued a statement Thursday night that said: "We are assuming that the New York Stock Exchange will open as usual in the morning. However, we will take a new look at the situation early, and if there is any change, we will make a public announcement at that time."

The statement was issued following announcement from London of a bank holiday and exchange closing there on Friday.

Nixon Predicts Election Of Republican President

MARSHFIELD, Wis. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said Thursday that his analysis of the New Hampshire primary results indicated millions of Democrats will join Independents and Republicans in electing a Republican President in November.

Nixon opened a three-stop, one-day visit to Wisconsin before a crowd of 2,500 in the Marshfield Armory.

The former vice president said that his showing in New Hampshire (79 per cent) was "the biggest vote that any candidate ever received in a New Hampshire primary."

Nixon said, "This is a message to the nation. Republican voters are going to unite and the Democratic party is going to divide. Millions of Democrats will join Independents and Republicans."

formed in America because of the great cause," Nixon said. "Americans are deeply concerned about the broader problems of maintaining peace in the future, restoring peace in the United States and restoring the value of the dollar."

Nixon was applauded several times during his speech by the audience which included many high school students. He urged the crowd to vote in the Republican presidential primary April 2 even though "I know Wisconsin voters like to go where the action is."

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Harold Stassen will also be on the Republican primary ballot, but the big contest will be on the Democratic side where Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., confronts President Johnson.

Nixon flew from Chicago into Wisconsin.

companion Senate Finance Committee, which is considering a House-passed bill to produce $4.2 billion in revenue by continuing present auto and telephone excise tax rates and speeding up corporation tax payments.

To a suggestion that it might be a good idea to go back to the income tax levels in effect before a cut in 1964, Fowler said that would produce about $22 billion a year, as against the $10 billion under Johnson's proposal.

"I would welcome this," the secretary said.

Fowler put the European rush to buy gold—indicating a growing lack of confidence in the dollar—at the top of his reasons for enacting an income tax increase at once.

He cited five factors: 1. "The highly volatile situation in the international monetary markets now is threatening the very preservation of the international monetary system as we know it."

2. "Clear indication that the Federal Reserve is on the move in the direction of increased monetary restraint because of the failure to pass a tax bill."

3. "It is now clear we may be faced with increased federal expenditures beyond the figures in the President's budget submitted in January because of events in the intervening period in Vietnam."

4. "The increased pace of the economy generally calls for more restraint."

5. "Our trade surplus is being reduced to an extent that may offset the efforts we are making to reduce our balance of payments deficit . . ."

Pitt. Teachers Want Minimum Of $7,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Pittsburgh teachers organization approved resolutions Thursday calling for a minimum teacher salary of $7,000 a year and improved fringe benefits.

The group also hired an executive director and solidly endorsed a negotiating committee to meet with the Board of Education.

It also outlined its position in any election that would determine who would represent the city's 3,000 teachers in negotiations with the board.

The series of resolutions was passed by the Pittsburgh Teachers Education Association at its first meeting ever.

Frank Damiana, chairman of the group's negotiating committee, said the wage schedule topped the list of demands. He estimated it would cost the school board $4.5 million a year.

"The salary schedule was accepted by the board's Committee on Personnel," Damiana said, "and the committee members said they would recommend it to the full board of education for approval. It will be implemented as soon as funds become available."

Jerry Fuchs, longtime organizer for the National Education Association, was named executive director.

John W. McCarter, president of the group, said that the PTEA is not opposed to an election to determine a representative for teachers at the bargaining table.

The Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers walked out for 11 days and returned to the classrooms after the board said it would sanction a collective bargaining election if it was within Pennsylvania law.

Mishap Sends North Warren Man to Hospital

A North Warren man was admitted to Warren General Hospital Thursday with a possible jaw fracture and lacerations of the chin following an automobile accident which occurred on Pennsylvania ave. E. about 7 p.m., according to borough police.

Harry R. Calhoun, 30, 12 School st., North Warren, was taken to Warren General Hospital by North Warren ambulance after the car he was driving crashed into a parked car owned by H. H. Baldensperger, 399 Fairmont ave., Jamestown, N.Y., according to a report by investigating officer James W. Neall.

The accident occurred, officer Neall stated, when Calhoun driving west crashed into the Baldensperger car legally parked in front of 1907 Pennsylvania ave. E. The impact of the crash pushed the Baldensperger vehicle into a utility pole. Damage to the Baldensperger vehicle was estimated at $250, according to police, while damage to the Calhoun car was set at $900.

Calhoun, who, according to state police of the local substation, was involved in a similar accident earlier Thursday on S. State st., North Warren, will be charged with reckless driving, officer Neall reported.

Penelec Supt. Will Retire

FOLKENSON

H. Henry Folkenson, superintendent of construction for Pennsylvania Electric Company, a veteran engineer who has supervised the building of several of the nation's largest electric generating stations will retire at the end of March.

Folkenson, who has been serving as project manager of the $150 million Homer City Station, being built in Indiana County by Penelec and the New York State Electric & Gas Corp, has been employed at Penelec since 1955.

He first served as a mechanical engineer in the utility's construction department, Johnstown, Pa. He is a native of Easton, Pa.

US Command Cuts Estimates Of Enemy Forces in S. Viet

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced Thursday the first substantial cut in months in its estimate of enemy forces in South Vietnam, reckoning that the Viet Cong and infiltrated North Vietnamese now total from 207,000 to 220,000.

That would be a drop of from 16,000-28,000 from the previous figures, despite enemy recruiting and infiltration to make up for the loss of thousands of troops—more than 50,000 by U.S. report—in the lunar new year offensive. The estimate had been 223,000 to 248,000.

On the other hand, American combat deaths through seven years of war in Vietnam evidently have now passed the 20,000 mark. The U.S. Command said 509 American servicemen were killed last week, pushing the total to 19,760. Scores have fallen since.

The allies, forced to divide manpower between garrison and field duty, are building toward a total of 1,380,000 by the end of June. Of these, 525,000 would be Americans.

The ambush of a 30-truck convoy Thursday on a main highway only nine miles northeast of Saigon, though a relatively minor incident, demonstrated a still pressing threat of Viet Cong forces around the capital.

Enemy riflemen and machine gunners lying in wait along Route 1A, which carries thousands of allied vehicles daily, fired on the convoy as it moved north toward the big U.S. base at Long Binh. One U.S. soldier and one of the enemy were killed. Damage to the convoy, made up of 11 military and 19 civilian vehicles, was described as light.

The bushwackers were part of enemy forces perhaps refitting for another attempt to seize or destroy Saigon. Intelligence officers estimate the Communist high command has 10,000 men

Teachers Will Negotiate With Jamestown Board

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Teaching loads, schedules, salaries and expanded teacher aides are among the topics to be negotiated by the Jamestown Teachers Association at the local school board meeting. A spokesman for the JTA announced Thursday the association will deliver its contract for specific requests to School Supt. Dr. Harold L. O'Neill.

The teacher's association said it hopes to begin collective bargaining with the local school board on April 3. A statement for JTA prepared by Attorney Richard Rowley, Albany, said the association is ready to negotiate and has pledged every effort to reach an agreement as soon as possible. Rowley, a member of the Albany firm of Sneringer & Rowley is counsel for JTA and the New York Teachers' Association.

The negotiating team of JTA met Wednesday with school board representatives and presented a preliminary outline of its contract proposals. JTA President James Conti said the negotiating committee will consist of Robert W. Whitney, George E. Peterson, Rowley and himself. Supporting members for the teachers will be Donald Dube, Theodore Kurtzhals, chairman of the grievance committee, and Lois Sandeen, JTA secretary.

In past years the school board has adopted the budget in June after giving tentative approval in May. The new budget has an effective date of July 1. This year, however, marks the first time teachers will be negotiating with the local board, under N.Y. State's new Public Employee Relations Act, better known as the Taylor Law.

McCarthy Expects Kennedy To Enter Race Very Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy said Thursday he expects Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to enter the Democratic presidential race within days.

The Minnesota said this might split opponents of the Vietnam war and help renominate President Johnson.

McCarthy told reporters he expects Kennedy to run in at least three primaries, in California, Oregon and Nebraska, and to compete for delegates in states that have no primaries.

"I think he will announce before Monday," McCarthy said, "unless reaction is bad" to Kennedy's statement that he would reassess his position.

He said that if Kennedy's reassessment results in a decision to contest for the nomination in the key Oregon and California primaries, the result might be to assure both of these states' delegations for Johnson at the Democratic National Convention. "It would make it a little less likely that we would have strength on the first ballot," he said.

McCarthy said his supporters are standing firm behind him and he showed his determination to stay in the race by announcing he will run in two more presidential primaries, in Indiana on May 7 and in South Dakota on June 4.

Kennedy refused to add anything to his announcement that he is reassessing the situation. "I'm not having anything further to say," he told reporters outside his office.

Kennedy's statement drew prompt support from California's top Democrat, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, but there was little early support from other leading Democrats around the country.

Aides to the New York Democrat have said he will reach his decision by a week from Friday, which is the deadline for withdrawal from the May 28 Oregon primary.

The aides had also indicated Kennedy might enter other primaries, if he decides to run, but McCarthy moved quickly to get into these races ahead of the New York Democrat.

In announcing he will enter the Indiana and South Dakota primaries, McCarthy said he is doing so because "neither President Johnson nor Richard M. Nixon, now the leading Republican candidate, offer Americans a real choice or a real alternative."

"The issues, therefore, must be raised in as many primary elections as possible to ensure that as many voters as possible can express their wish as to the future course of America," he said.

McCarthy said Wednesday he thought a Kennedy candidacy, based on approximately the same platform as his, might confuse matters. He was asked by reporters Thursday if he thought Kennedy's entry would split the peace movement. "I think it would," he replied.

He was then asked if he thought Johnson's chances of renomination would be enhanced by a Kennedy candidacy. He shook his head and repeated "I think it would."

Later, in his office, McCarthy was shown a Washington Evening Star headline which read "Kennedy getting cool response."

"What else would you expect," he said.

A key supporter of Johnson, meanwhile, said a Kennedy candidacy would mean "a disruptive split" in the Democratic party.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey told a news conference he fears a Johnson-Kennedy struggle will tear apart the party. He said he will support the President in the June 4 primary but conceded "we'd have plenty of difficulty."

McCarthy spent the day in Washington before leaving early Friday for Wisconsin, and his battle against Johnson in that state's April 2 primary.

KP Comes to An End, Civilians to be Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has decreed an end to KP for most servicemen.

The "emancipation proclamation" is a new Defense Department directive requiring the armed services to use civilians to prepare and serve food for the troops "unless there are

Father of Youth Who Died, Sues Cornell Univ.

UTICA, N. Y. (AP) — The father of a 17-year-old youth who perished with eight other persons in a fire last year in a Cornell University dormitory Thursday filed a $1,750,000 negligence suit against the university.

The action is believed to be the first resulting from the pre-dawn fire April 5 at the Cornell Heights Residential Club. The two-story structure was used as a dormitory for 71 students and advisers including 43 elite students enrolled in an accelerated program leading to a Ph. D. degree in six years.

In the suit filed in Federal District Court here, Jeffrey W. Smith Sr. of Cupertino, Calif., claimed Cornell permitted the residence "to be in overcrowded condition with certain inadequate and substandard facilities and building violations and fire hazards."

He said the university "had previous notice of such hazards."

Smith's son, Jeffrey Jr., died of asphyxiation, as did seven other students and a faculty adviser.

Smith said his son had an IQ of 160 and was considered "a true genius." He said the youth had been awarded an $20,000 Ford Foundation grant for study under the special program at Cornell.

The cause of the fire, which began in the basement level, has never been determined.

A coroner's inquest later ruled there was no criminal negligence involved in the fire.

Smith was represented by Attorney William F. Fitzpatrick of Syracuse.

military essentiality requirements which dictate the use of military personnel."

The objective is to free more servicemen for military tasks and to upgrade the quality of the food service.

The order requires the changeover by mid-1970.

"With limited exceptions, the instruction... eliminates the use of military personnel as KPs," the Pentagon said.

There will be exceptions—such as in combat areas.

"Military personnel will continue to be used in those positions that require a military incumbent for reasons of law, training, security, discipline, rotation or combat readiness," the Defense Department said.

This means, among other things, that a man can still be placed on KP if his unit commander decides to punish him that way for some infraction.

The food jobs—cooks, bakers, meatcutters, food service attendants, food supply people—will be drawn from civilians either hired directly by the armed services or provided by contractors.

Sources said that, in addition to releasing more servicemen for military duties, the switch to civilians in food service work should lead to more jobs for civilians in relatively unskilled groups.

The new action falls under a program initiated by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara about 2½ years ago.

He billed it as a program to "reduce the cost of the nation's military buildup by reassigning large numbers of military personnel in noncombat, support-type assignments" and replacing them with civilians.

Covered were clerical, maintenance, transportation and administrative jobs.

In his last report to Congress, McNamara said in February that about 80,500 civilian positions were substituted for 74,300 military slots by June 1967 and that an additional 34,400 civilian jobs would replace about 39,900 more servicemen by this summer.

Smith said both the State Police and National Guard had pledged that their policy would be "containment and isolation, as opposed to repression and counter attack."

"They said they would use only such force as is necessary to bring the situation under control," Smith said.

National Guard officials also pledged that troops would use only rifles, no bayonets or automatic weapons, Smith said, and both Guard and State Police officials said they would use only tear gas to control rioters.

When questioned about possible danger spots, Smith said there was "probability rather than a possibility" that disorders would flare in Pittsburgh.

Smith said he did not have knowledge of the Philadelphia situation, but he added that the city "has a lot of problems."

Barton Fields, president of the Greater Harrisburg Area NAACP, said there have been no changes in the tension that gripped the capital city last summer.

With Smith and Fields were Matthew Moore of Pittsburgh, a member of the board of the Pennsylvania NAACP; Philip H. Savage of Philadelphia, field secretary of the NAACP for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware; and the Rev. Donald McLivane of Pittsburgh, a member of the Pittsburgh NAACP.

Time and Tide

There's an old saying that time and tide wait for no man. The wisdom of these few words has never been challenged. So in a county where "six or eight years from now" is soon enough, and the prevalent thought is that a tide of tourism will sweep over us whether we want it or not, perhaps the time has come to take a look around and notice the competition we will have to meet when we finally do get around to promoting Warren County.

We have the big Kinzua Dam, so what do we have to worry about? Not much, unless you consider the fact that just ten years from now it is expected that Pennsylvania will have 57,000 acres of additional impounded waters. This is just about double the competition we presently have when it comes to attracting water-oriented tourists to the county.

But by then we will have the recreational facilities being planned today. So what? So will the Shenango Reservoir, Pymatuning Dam, Oil Creek Valley State Park, Laurel Mountains State Park, and possibly Otocoin (the vast recreational complex along the newly constructed Shortway between Clearfield and DuBois) to name only a few.

In fact, a recent announcement indicates that at Pymatuning State Park $826,469.00 contract has been let to improve and expand the existing camping facilities. Trefry Associates of Butler, architects and engineers, indicate that the re-do job will provide both the new and existing camping plots with all the modern conveniences such as flush toilets, showers, paved roads, and laundry facilities. One of the buildings will be heated for campers using the area during the late fall or early spring.

This campground will be opened to the public in the spring of 1969. Oil Creek Valley State Park, with its many modern campgrounds, is expected to be ready for the public by 1970. Others throughout the state will be opened to the public this spring or will be completed throughout the summer.

Where does this leave Warren County? It leaves us in a pretty desperate competitive position if we are ever to realize the possibilities for economic development that have been open to us since away back in 1963.

As the old saying goes, time (the time for action) and tide (the tide of tourists who should be coming to Warren County but will find their way to already developed facilities) waits for no man. Which simply means that if "apathy" is a disease, Warren County is suffering an epidemic.

LARRY STOTZ

Farewell American Elm

One of Warren's greatest charms is the abundance of trees that shade its streets and walks. The town's New England heritage is reflected in the many huge American elms that were planted long ago. The fast-growing elm, with its feathery duster crown, had seemed the perfect tree to plant. Many New England towns had settled for this native species almost exclusively.

At Cambridge, Massachusetts, George Washington stood under the shade of an American elm and assumed command of the American army. After this historic event, the tree became known as the "Washington Elm."

But the American elm has played a part in the history of Pennsylvania too. It was under an elm tree on the banks of the Delaware that William Penn made his treaty with the Indians. This elm became known as the "Treaty Tree." When it was blown over in March 1810, a ring count indicated that it had lived for 283 years. The Penn Society has erected a monument on the site of this historic elm.

The place of this fast-growing, long lived tree seemed secure as a shade tree on college campuses and in towns and villages in the East. Then came the Dutch Elm disease—an immigrant from the land of tulips. It has the reputation of being the most destructive shade tree disease in the United States.

First discovered in Ohio in 1930, it has covered the natural range of the American elm. It is a fungus disease, and is spread by two species of elm bark beetles. The European species is the more efficient carrier of the two.

There is no cure for the Dutch elm disease. The only effective means of control are the treatment of healthy trees to prevent them from becoming infected, and the prompt destruction of dead and dying trees.

It is easy to recognize the symptoms of this disease. The foliage on a branch will wilt, dry out, and turn yellow. Then the disease spreads to other branches until the entire crown becomes infected. If the initial infection occurs in the spring or early summer, the tree is not so seriously affected, and may even recover. But this gives it no immunity to re-infection.

Present methods of attempting to control the disease are aimed at the insect carriers. By prevention or reduction of feeding by beetles in living elm trees, and reducing the beetle population through the destruction of elm material needed for breeding, a two-prong attack is made. The first requires spraying; the second is a matter of sanitation.

Ever since Rachel Carson wrote "Silent Spring," chemical spraying has fallen into ill repute. When one has a lovely old elm in one's yard it is a hard decision to make whether or not to spray to protect it. Some may prefer to sacrifice the tree to the Dutch elm disease rather than to chemically spray with DDT, or even the less toxic methoxychlor.

Some idea of the equipment involved for adequately spraying the huge crown of a 100-foot high elm may be gathered from the following. Test sprays with large trees have shown that if a hydraulic sprayer is used, it should have an output of 60 gallons per minute at a pressure of up to 600 pounds per square inch. If a mist blower is used, it should have an air output of 25,000 cubic feet at a 100-miles-per-hour nozzle velocity. The spray output should be at the rate of at least one gallon per minute.

Any one who does decide to spray must be sure that all bark surfaces are completely covered with the insecticide if the beetles are to be prevented from feeding. Special care needs to be taken to get good coverage in the upper crown of the tree. The best time for spraying is before the elm-bark beetles become active in the spring.

M.O. Steen, director of the Nebraska Game Commission is pessimistic enough about the future of the American elm to advise individuals, garden clubs, and city councils to think seriously about replacement of elms with other species of trees than the American elm.

Perhaps that is the best solution to the Dutch elm disease problem in Warren County. There is a rich heritage of native species to choose from in replacing the native elm in our towns and villages. Fortunately, Warren never did exhibit quite the devotion to the American elm that so many of the New England towns did. Quite a wide variety of species may be found growing in Warren. Certainly, any tree that dis-eases—whether American elm or white ash—should be promptly replaced by a healthy young tree, but not by an American elm.

"TOO BAD. WITH THE FIDDLE HE HAD REAL TALENT."

Dream This Summer

The first bright smile of Spring adorns the land and the whole nation starts to discuss summer vacations. Some will go to the same old lake; others will trudge the mountains, or walk bare-footed along damp beaches. A few will sleep at home through the entire two weeks.

This is the year that industry and government ask you to take a look at America. It's worth a look, not only because it is a place of stunning beauty, but it will also keep a couple of billions of dollars from flowing into foreign hands, to be redeemed for gold at Fort Knox.

If I had three weeks to spare, I'd buy tourist vacation tickets on the airlines and see the whole country. Three weeks? This proves that more than the air is balmy. Permit me to dream on. I'd start in New York.

NEW YORK is a great departure point. If you enjoy legitimate theatre, in addition to Grant's Tomb and the Statue of Liberty, it may be worth a two-day stay. It's loaded with hot canyons and cold eyes.

DETROIT is a favorite short stop, because of Dearborn, which has restored the original courtroom in which Abraham Lincoln practiced; the Wright Brothers laboratory, with their books and drawings of planes; Henry Ford's first efforts at making a horseless carriage; Thomas Edison's first generator and electric light bulb. Besides, one can ride through the Windsor Tunnel and visit Canada.

DENVER: This mile-high city sits in the shadow of the lofty Rockies. An hour's drive from an original mining town, complete with hitchhiking posts, dance hall, opera house, the face on the barroom floor. Denver has some swinging joints for dinner.

LAS VEGAS: A billiard table desert with a diamond-studded cue in the middle. Beautiful girls, sophisticated roulette wheels—sleep all day, play all night. See gigantic Hoover Dam. Only the losers jump.

SEATTLE: The northwestern edge of the United States. Fine restaurants, good golf courses, the whole Cascade Range is in view. There is the Columbia River, Vancouver to the north and Olympic National Park on the Pacific Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO: The personality kid of municipalities. Steep hills, antique trolleys, Golden Gate and seafood restaurants so good they are almost sinful. See Yosemite National Park, by all means.

LOS ANGELES: Rent a car and drive down the coast from San Francisco. It's worth it. The Monterey Peninsula is breathtaking in its beauty. In Los Angeles, see Beverly Hills and the homes of the movie stars. Go to the motion picture studios and watch a movie being made. See Disneyland. Dine in a Mexican area.

SAN ANTONIO: A great city. Sail on a river of flowers and lights at night. Visit the Alamo. Enjoy the music of Spanish guitars and the welcome hand all San Antonians extend to strangers.

NEW ORLEANS: Not so quaint these days, but the French influence is still alive in one quarter of the city. Wonderful creole dining; good Dixieland combinations in many of the taverns. Stand on a levee of the Mississippi and hum Old Man River.

MIAMI: Not hot in the summer, as you might think. Visit the beach, bathe in clear jade seas. Visit the Seaguard, the Florida Keys. Great fishing, dog tracks, golf courses. Probably the most naturally beautiful setting in the nation.

HOME: You will probably find it just where you left it. The sweetest part of any homecoming is the joy of your own bed. It soothes every contour of your weary frame. You are destined for a few surprises, such as a couple of dozen newspapers at the door; a dining room table good for writing your name in dust; something which somebody forgot to turn off.

There are other places I would visit—If I had the time and the checkbook. Yellowstone National Park is one; the Black Hills of Dakota is another. A boat trip on the Mississippi; the rocky area of Maine between Portland and Boothbay Harbor; Quebec, which isn't American but I'm beginning to think it isn't Canadian either. How about the ten thousand lakes of Minnesota; the enchanting southern atmosphere of Memphis; the whole NASA complex at Houston; the austere marble beauty of Washington, D. C.; King Street in Charleston? Milwaukee all the time.

This summer, dream big. It will give you something to talk about all next winter.

Events Prompt Comparison

SAIGON—As a correspondent in China 20 years ago, I watched the communist takeover of the mainland. The conditions which led to the downfall of Chiang Kai-shek are present today in Vietnam. Here are some disturbing parallels:

PARALLEL NO. 1—The Chinese communists gradually wrested control of the countryside, bottling up the nationalists in the cities. Once in power, the Reds would strip the hated landlords of their holdings and parcel out the land to the peasants. When the nationalists occasionally reconquered an area, they immediately returned the land to the absentee landlords.

This is precisely what is happening in Vietnam today. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has pleaded with the South Vietnamese authorities to adopt land reforms. However, the Saigon government has made no move to give the peasants a greater share in the land they till. For many of the leaders in Saigon, as in Nanking 20 years ago, happen to be landlords.

PARALLEL NO. 2—Chiang presided over a coalition of war lords, who grew rich off American aid intended for their people. Corrupt officials' down the line siphoned off U.S. goods that passed through their hands. Army commanders pocketed pay and supplies that had been earmarked for their troops. And Nationalist leaders suddenly began opening fabulous bank accounts in Switzerland and the U.S.

All of this has been going on in Vietnam. President Nguyen Van Thieu, however, has fired two war lords and has taken the first hesitant steps to curb corruption.

PARALLEL NO. 3—The tragedy of China is that Chiang recognized and corrected his mistakes after it was too late. In his island retreat, he finally adopted socio-economic reforms that have transformed Formosa into a prosperous, progressive country with the second highest living standards in Asia. His agricultural programs have become a model for the underdeveloped world. If he had pushed these reforms on the mainland he would never have been forced off.

President Thieu also appears to be awakening to the need for reforms too slowly to save Vietnam. It will take some dramatic social, economic and political improvements to win the public support that is essential to real victory. But the cautious Thieu is pussyfooting at a time when bold political action is demanded.

In Vietnam, of course, Thieu is backed by American firepower which was not available to Chiang. The Viet Cong can no more drive the Americans out of the country than a pack of rats could defeat an elephant. The rats might torment the elephant by gnawing at his heels, then elude his crushing counter-blows by scattering into their holes. The harassment might persuade him to leave, but they could never push him out.

Likewise, the Viet Cong cannot defeat the U.S.; they can only hope to discourage the Americans from remaining in Vietnam. This appears to be the aim of North Vietnam's master strategist, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, who defeated the French 14 years ago more in the back rooms of Paris than on the battlefields of Vietnam. Apparently, he now hopes to repeat this strategy against the U.S.

Already, he has joined Washington with his bold attacks against 36 South Vietnamese cities. His troops were driven out of them all with heavy losses, which can hardly be called a military victory. Yet the Viet Cong offensive must be described as a psychological success.

Giap, it seems, next hopes to overrun Khe Sanh, which he would like to turn into an American Dien Bien Phu. He is using precisely the same tactics against the beleaguered Marines that overwhelmed the French defenders at Dien Bien Phu 14 years ago.

It is a showdown which Gen. William Westmoreland, the American commander, welcomes. He has tried to draw the North Vietnamese into open battle. While they are attacking the encircled Marines, he hopes to encircle the attackers.

Westmoreland definitely has no intention of losing the battle. He has assured the Joint Chiefs that Khe Sanh will not fall. But if he has underestimated Giap, as the French did, the psychological impact would be devastating.

Not even the fall of Khe Sanh, however, would mean that the U.S. has lost the Vietnam war. On both sides, the conflict has become a war of attrition. Westmoreland is trying to wear down the communists who, in turn, are trying to wear out American patience. It has become a test of staying power.

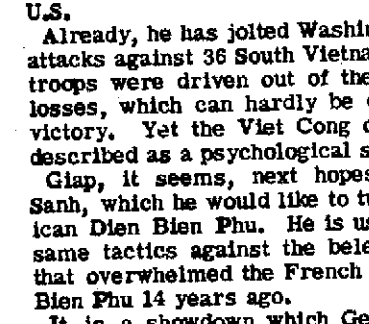

But is it worth staying in Vietnam? Certainly the U.S. cannot afford to pour $26 billion a year, let alone the blood of our boys, into this remote jungle for too much longer.

The purpose, according to Secretary of State Rusk, is to contain Communist China. Admittedly, Peking is trying to foment insurrections in every country in Southeast Asia. These will be given encouragement, no doubt, if the U.S. pulls out of Vietnam. But why South Vietnam can never poke more than a finger into the Chinese dike.

It will take the manpower of India to block the manpower of China from sweeping over Asia. India's population increase each year is equal to the entire population of South Vietnam. In other words, India adds another South Vietnam to her growth every year.

Yet, when the Indians for two years begged the U.S. to arm them against the Chinese, Washington refused. The Indians were forced to turn to the Soviet Union, which sold them arms and now has more influence than the U.S. in New Delhi.

It seems to me that our $26 billion a year could have been spent more effectively building up the great nations of Asia—India, Indonesia, Australia and Japan. Instead, for 20 years, we have been spending our money on the small nations of Asia and restricting aid to the great nations which have the manpower to contain China.

SYLVIA PORTER

Where The Jobs Will Be

If you, today's high school or college student, intend to become a scientist, you should know that in the years directly ahead the greatest job opportunities will be for life scientists, including medical, agricultural and biological scientists.

If you are interested in a clerical career, you should recognize that the prospects will be brightest for those working with office electronic computers and operating office machines, as opposed to bookkeepers or stenographers.

Or, if you dream of becoming a writer, you should understand that most of the new opportunities will be for technical writers, particularly in the fields of electronics and communications. Also, your best chances as a journalist will be with small town newspapers.

These are a few of the trends which will be highlighted in the U.S. Labor Department's 1968-69 Occupational Outlook Handbook, which will be published next month and which will describe in detail more than 700 different occupations.

Here are some of the broad trends:

Between now and 1975, the overall U.S. labor force is expected to grow from today's 81.6 million to 89 million workers.

The most rapidly growing sectors of this overall growth will be in jobs for women, particularly those in the 45-54 age brackets; for those with college and post-college degrees; for those going into the professions, into skilled occupations and into the service fields.

Jobs in service fields, ranging from medicine to cooking, will soar, in the 1965-75 decade four times as rapidly as jobs in transportation, public utilities or manufacturing.

Jobs in government, federal, state and local, will climb almost 4 million, or nearly 40 per cent during this period. Jobs in mining will continue their long decline and the number of jobs in agriculture is slated to drop another 23 per cent in the 1965-75 period.

In the fields of education and health, there will be enormous numbers of new jobs. Demands will be acute for college teachers and school counselors, especially vocational counselors. Job opportunities in health will be across-the-board, encompassing not only physicians and nurses but also dentists, dental laboratory technicians, X-ray technicians, physical and occupational therapists, dietitians and veterinarians.

In the scientific-technical fields, chances will be almost limitless. By 1975, the demand for scientists and engineers is expected to be up by nearly 57 per cent, with greatly expanded job opportunities for life scientists, physicists, mathematicians, chemists, metallurgists, geophysicists and geologists.

Other fast expanding areas will be: advertising, banking, hotel and restaurant management, protective service, food service, business machine servicing, carpentry, plumbing, electrical service, real estate, insurance, television and radio repair, systems analysts, secretarial and accounting and other office work.

Obviously, the key message to you is this:

Before you settle on a final career choice, look over the literally hundreds of different occupations which will be open to you in the years ahead. Find out, in advance, which occupations within each career field that interests you will offer you the most promising job opportunities.

The consideration and passage of appropriations and revenue measures."

Senator Pechan noted that the bill was initially introduced in the House of Representatives June 12, 1967, and that after more than five months of deliberation, the bill finally passed the House, was sent to the Senate on November 30, 1967, and subsequently referred to the Senate Public Health and Welfare Committee of which he is chairman.

He said during this period the prime objective of the General Assembly was the consideration of the General Fund Budget and revenues to support this Budget, thus making it impossible to review many measures including HB 1223.

"I feel that a bill of this type must be reviewed very carefully to determine what effect it may have in many areas," he commented. "Consideration of this bill will be made in due time, after all facets have been explored by the committee."

Happenings Years Ago

New moves to put Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the presidential race were under way today. Many of the nation's meat packing plants and soft coal mines were made idle today by walkouts in these two major industries. More than 310,000 workers were on the sidelines. Extensive alterations and renovations are being made to the three-story building at 336 Pennsylvania ave. West, preparatory to the opening in that building of several new departments by the Darling Jewelry and Furniture Company.

1958
Comedian Bob Hope is off to the Soviet Union to film two television shows during a six-day stay.

Frank Edward Wetzel, convicted of killing two state highway patrolmen, escaped the gas chamber but received sentences which will make it unlikely he will ever be free again.

Andrew Yurick, who will coach the April Player's Club production "Janus" will hold additional readings at 7:30 this evening at the Woman's Club.

HARRISBURG — Columnist's Notebook:
NO NEW TAXES IN 1968? When administration legislative leaders introduced legislation in the House of Representatives this week providing for upping minimum teacher pay this year to $5400 and $6000 the following year (from the present $4500 minimum) question immediately arose as to whether the Governor would have to abandon his "I propose no new taxes for 1968" pronouncement of January 2.

After all, cost of the proposed increase for this year alone is estimated at around $53 million (with no firm estimate for the following year) — and his Excellency has been able to scrounge only $28 million for teacher pay increase via statistical juggling and revising state accounting procedures.

This leaves some $25 million that will have to be underwritten by a tax increase somewhere along the line — thus what about Mr. Shafer's vow that he would propose no new taxes? As this column noted on January 8 in referring to the pledge:

"It should be noted that Mr. Shafer said 'he' would propose no new taxes for 1968 — which of course does not rule out the possibility of administration legislative leaders coming up with new tax proposals (whose responsibility it is in the first place, not the Governor's)."

THE LEGISLATIVE WARS — Nettled by the contention of Representative Anita P. Kelly, Philadelphia Democrat, as expressed in this column last week, that Senator Albert R. Pechan, Armstrong County Republican, maintained an unresponsive attitude toward a bill sent to his Senate committee that would provide payment of chiropractors for certain services rendered under medical insurance plans, the veteran Kitzman lawmaker this week had a few words of his own to offer on the allegation!

"Representative Kelly was quoted as saying that she has received replies from every Senator except myself — this is untrue," Mr. Pechan said. "My first communication from Representative Kelly was dated February 28, 1968, and immediately upon receipt, we contacted Representative Kelly by phone and explained our position that the bill would receive consideration. Representative Kelly further alludes to the fact that all Senators have indicated support for HB 1223, which again is not true. Being an able legislator, Representative Kelly should know quite well that a bill of such a controversial nature cannot be processed in a period of four legislative days (all others being utilized for

Senator Pechan noted that the bill was initially introduced in the House of Representatives June 12, 1967, and that after more than five months of deliberation, the bill finally passed the House, was sent to the Senate on November 30, 1967, and subsequently referred to the Senate Public Health and Welfare Committee of which he is chairman.

He said during this period the prime objective of the General Assembly was the consideration of the General Fund Budget and revenues to support this Budget, thus making it impossible to review many measures including HB 1223.

"I feel that a bill of this type must be reviewed very carefully to determine what effect it may have in many areas," he commented. "Consideration of this bill will be made in due time, after all facets have been explored by the committee."

Hayes, Unseld Duel In Tourney Tonight

A matchup of All-Americans Elvin Hayes of Houston and Wes Unseld of Louisville at Wichita, Kan., and a shoot-out among four Top Ten teams at Raleigh, N.C., feature second round play Friday night in the sprawling NCAA major college basketball tournament.

In addition, UCLA renews its bid for a second straight NCAA title and a fourth in five years while Houston and St. Bonaventure strive to become the fifth team to climax an unbeaten season with an NCAA championship.

Nine of the nation's Top Ten teams will be involved in the eliminations at four centers — Raleigh, N.C., Lexington, Ky., Wichita, Kan., and Albuquerque, N.M. Duke, 10th ranked, is in the NIT at New York.

The second round winners Friday at each site will meet Saturday to determine the four semifinalists. The semifinals and finals, March 22-23, will be held at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Here are the Friday pairings with rankings and records:

East regional, Raleigh, N.C. — Columbia, No. 7, 22-4, vs. Davidson, No. 8, 23-4; St. Bonaventure, No. 3, 23-0, vs. North Carolina, No. 4, 25-3.

Midwest regional, Lexington, Ky. — East Tennessee, 19-6, vs. Ohio State, 18-7; Kentucky, No. 5, 21-4, vs. Marquette, 22-5.

Midwest regional, Wichita, Kan. — Texas Christian, 14-10, vs. Kansas State, 19-7; Louisville, No. 9, 20-6, vs. Houston, No. 1, 9-0.

West regional, Albuquerque, N.M. — UCLA, No. 2, 25-1, vs. New Mexico State, 22-5; New Mexico, No. 6, 23-3, vs. Santa Clara, 22-3.

College Aiming For 'Instant' Football Squad

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A South Carolina college is interested in recruiting the full football team of a private four-year Virginia college facing transformation to a public two-year institution.

"We're interested in moving the entire team — lock, stock and barrel — to Charleston, S.C., Baptist College," said Baptist Athletic Director Howard Dagwell after consultations with officials of Frederick College.

Frederick's athletic program was wiped out with last Friday's announcement that the institution would be transformed from private four-year status to a two-year, state-operated community college beginning in September.

Portsmouth philanthropist Fred W. Beazley, founder of the college, gave Frederick $1 million for operations to the Commonwealth of Virginia for use as a two-year college.

Dagwell, accompanied by Asst. Athletic Director Stan Honeycutt, came here Tuesday after getting the go-ahead from the president of the South Carolina College.

Baptist College, in its third year en route to becoming a four-year school, has an enrollment of 1,100 which is expected to grow to 1,500 next September.

"Our original plans called for the start of a varsity football program in 1970," Dagwell said Tuesday night.

"But with the Frederick development I will recommend that we start varsity football in September. That is, of course, if the schools on the Frederick schedule will agree to the shift."

Charleston Baptist is a member of the NCAA, but Dagwell doesn't foresee any problems in having the athletes transferred without losing a year of eligibility.

Baptist College is situated in Summerville, 15 miles inland from Charleston.

Oakland Seals Get Sale Offer

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The financially-troubled situation of the Oakland Seals came to a head Thursday when a Canadian beer firm agreed to buy the National Hockey League team. The new owners expect to move the franchise to Vancouver.

The sale by a group headed by Barry Van Gerbig to Labatt Breweries is contingent upon the shifting of the Seals to Vancouver plus its approval by at least nine of the other 11 NHL owners. The agreed purchase price was not disclosed.

The club reportedly owes the league $700,000 which must be paid by May 15.

The Seals, currently in last place in the circuit's West Division, have been averaging about 5,000 fans for each home game.

Hayes, the Player of the Year, and Unseld both are 6-foot-8, good shooters, strong rebounders and the top prospects of this year's college crop. Pro scouts will be able to hold a convention in Wichita.

Money's Bat Could Make Phils Smile

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Donald Wayne Money is a 20-year-old who hopes that his improved hitting will pay off into a regular job with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Money is the 6-foot-1 minor league shortstop who was labeled the key for Philadelphia in the trade which sent star pitcher Jim Bunning to the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Phils got three pitchers in the deal, but General Manager John Quinn made it plain that the Phillies were more interested in Money.

The blond youngster, who now resides in Vineland, N.J., evades use of the word pressure, but he says: "They traded a great pitcher like Bunning for me so they must feel I can produce this year or next."

He says neither Quinn nor Manager Gene Mauch have indicated during training sessions here whether they'll keep him with the Phillies or send him out for a year's seasoning.

Money has three years of organized baseball behind him. He hit .241 at Salem in 1965, .236 at Clinton the next year and .310 at Raleigh last season where he was voted the most valuable player in the Carolina League.

It's the hitting that concerns the youngster who bats and throws right. "They have a shortstop who can field (Bobby Wine). To stay with the club I have to hit. If I'm sent to Triple A it will be because I can't hit and need another year in the minors. It will be for my own good."

Mauch is high on the youngster. "He is a good ball player," says the manager. He acts like he expects to do well. He has all the moves of a fine major league shortstop. Good balance and strength at the plate. He works real hard and has no physical shortcomings. He has plenty of speed."

Mauch says he feels under no pressure to keep Money just because he was the bait in the Bunning deal. "I don't think a manager or a general manager has to justify a trade by keeping a player before he is ready."

"Money is going to make it big. It doesn't have to happen now. If it does, that's fine."

Bucs' Starg Think Positive About '68

FT. MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Willie Stargell says he thinks positive. After last season he had plenty to think about, but none of it was positive.

Stargell hit .315 with 33 home runs and 102 RBI in 1966. Every one was impressed with the performance, including Stargell. He celebrated it all winter.

Then, he came to training camp last season 20 pounds overweight. It took him six weeks to lose the good time he had all winter. He fought a slump all season, hitting under .100 before he finished strong to reach .271, with 20 home runs and 73 RBI, a good season for some, not for Stargell.

"Maybe it sounds like an excuse, but I was weak from the strenuous exercising I did to lose the weight," Stargell explained.

"It took me time to rebuild myself and regain my strength," he said in an interview at the Pirates' training camp. Stargell is repentant. He admits he paid the price for being a fat cat. "I suffered by it," he said. "I learned you had to stay in shape all year, not just in baseball season."

"Last winter I took 90 minutes of conditioning five days a week at the Pittsburgh Athletic Club. I'm underweight now. I realize now that had I done the things I should have done last year, I wouldn't have had a disappointing season."

The 27-year-old Pittsburgh outfielder, who missed the National League All-Star team in 1967 for the first time in four seasons, wants to put his 1967 miseries behind him. Twice he crashed into walls, developing tendonitis in his right shoulder. The Pirates were favored to win the pennant but finished sixth.

"After something goes wrong," said the 225-pound slugger, "you have to blame somebody. Our flop was one of those things we can blame only on ourselves. We didn't do our jobs. Some blamed the manager (deposed Harry Walker). He didn't field, run or hit for us. We wanted certain things done and we didn't do them."

Stargell squinted into the hot Florida sun and said, "I'm still a positive thinker. When you think negative you perform negative. So, this year I'm thinking

32 REPRESENT WARREN AT DUBOIS

Young Grapplers Compete In Junior Olympic Event

A total of 32 wrestlers will represent Warren in the AAU-sponsored Junior Olympic Championships at DuBois starting today. Competition will be held in two divisions, age 11-and-under and ages 12-14.

Weigh-ins will be held between 3-6 p.m. today at DuBois Area High School, with the first matches slated tonight at 7 o'clock. The tourney will resume tomorrow at 10 a.m., the afternoon round starts at 2:30 and the finals will be held at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to Warren, 11 other area schools will be represented and a total of 371 young grapplers are entered. Of that number 17 local matmen will compete in nine weight classes in the older division and 15 are entered in the 11-and-under division in nine classes. (See pictures)

Winners and runners-up in all weight classes of both divisions will advance to the State Tournament at Greensburg on March 22-23. All entries at DuBois will receive a certificate of participation and finalists will be presented official tournament wrestling shirts.

The tourney will be conducted under PIAA rules, with two exceptions: 1. All bouts will consist of three periods of one minute, one-and-one-half minutes, one-and-one-half minutes, with a thirty-second rest period between the second and third periods; 2. One riding time point will be awarded for a difference of 45 seconds to one-and-one-half minutes, two points for one-and-one-half minutes difference or more.

The conventional referee's position will be used during the tourney, and not the new Olympic position. All matches will be officiated by PIAA-approved referees.

Admission is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students for each day. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Coaches Lee Chew, George Knopik and Jack Creek will accompany the Warren wrestlers to the tournament. A number of local parents and fans are also expected to make the trip.

Barber, Big Jack Share Citrus Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Scat-tergun Jack Nicklaus and surprising Miller Barber trimmed five strokes off par with 67s Thursday, wrestling the first-round lead of the Citrus Open Golf Tournament away from five earlier finishers deadlocked at 68.

"I drove it awful," said Nicklaus. "I hit the ball off trees and people and everything."

Barber, 36-year-old winner of only two tournaments in 10 years on the pro tour, was elated with his round in which he sank four long birdie putts.

"That was one of the best rounds I've ever played under these conditions," said Barber after his finish on the windswept Rio Pinar course.

Nicklaus missed a chance to take charge in the $115,000 meet when he was short on a six-foot putt on the 18th green.

New Zealand leftie Bob Charles, diminutive Deane Beaman, Tom Weiskopf, Don Masengale, and Australia's Bruce Devlin were all home with 68s.

Tied at 69 were Bert Yancey, John Lotz, Bob Murphy, and Lee Trevino. Veterans Gay Brewer and Ken Venturi were among the two-anders, with Arnold Palmer and two-time 1967 winner George Knudson of Canada shooting 71s.

South African Gary Player, playing in his first U.S. tournament this year, shot a 72 along with Doug Sanders. Defending champion Julius Boros slipped to a 73.

Nicklaus, gally decked out in cherry-red slacks, drove into the pine trees on at least three holes and bounced a drive off a spectator on another hole, but fortunate bounces and deadly iron play got him out of trouble.

TEAM SET FIVE RECORDS, TIED ONE

14 Dragons Earned Mat Letters; 'Hall' Revised

Warren Area High School's Head Wrestling Coach Mike Weber has announced the varsity letter winners for the 1967-68 season and the revised "Hall of Fame."

Fourteen Dragons won letters, eight seniors and six underclassmen. Senior co-captains Doug Sorensen and Darrell Pusateri earned their fourth and third letters respectively. Seniors winning second awards were Jim Mead, Steve Kaiser, Ray Lowe and Bob Thompson. Steve Jones and Larry Johnson will receive their first letters.

Five juniors lettered, Bob Sequist, Mark Williams, Dane Sorensen, Mike Maines and Lee Bryan. It was the third award for Sorensen and the second for Maines and Bryan.

Freshman Dan Albough also was awarded his first letter. No sophomores lettered.

Two members of the 1967-68 Dragon varsity team were named to the "Hall of Fame" for the first time, Jones and Williams. Jones compiled a record of 16-3-1 in dual and tournament competition and ranks 8th on the all-time list. Williams, with a 14-4-1, is in 17th place.

Requirements for entry into the Hall are a minimum of 15 varsity matches and a 70 per cent winning record, up from the 55 per cent needed when the list was originated several years ago.

Dick Thompson, Warren's only Regional Champion now at Arizona State, remained number one in the all-time rankings with an overall career mark of 54-6-1 for an even 90 per cent winning average.

Doug Sorensen owns the best dual match record, 47-2-4 for a 96 per cent victory average, and fell short of Thompson's all-time mark by just four-tenths of a percentage point. Sorensen was 60-7-4 in overall competition for an 89.6 average. He surpassed Thompson in dual match victories, 47 to 35, and in career wins, 60 to 54.

Dane Sorensen is the only other current Dragon grappler on the list. He owns a 36-9-1 dual match record and is 39-14-3 overall.

As a team, the 1967-68 Dragons established five new all-time records and tied another. In posting a 12-1-1 season mark, the Blue and White set a new mark for most victories in one season, most team points scored, 461, most individual matches won, 136, most falls, 44, and least falls against, 6. With four Section champions, the Dragons equalled the number of winners in 1954, 1962, 1963 and 1966.

The Westerners also won the Section team title for the sixth time.

Individually, Doug Sorensen posted the longest dual match streak with a loss, 40 matches between 1965 and 1968, had the best dual match record this season, 12-0-1, and the top overall mark, 17-1-1.

Pusateri and Jones both had 16-3-1 overall records. Pusateri also led in team points earned during the season, 56. Doug Sorensen collected 50 and Bryan had 51.

Pusateri and Bryan tied for most falls, 7 each. Sequist, Dane and Doug Sorensen all registered five. Thompson scored the most reversals, 17. Williams and Dane Sorensen each had 10. Mead tallied nine and Lowe had 8.

Maines led in escapes, 16, and Lowe broke away 10 times. Coach Weber established a career victory mark of 75 per cent with a 29-13-3 total in four seasons at the helm.

Since 1949, Warren wrestling teams have won 131 matches, lost 68 and tied 7.

Warren has won 41 individual Section titles and 12 individual District crowns. Don Brian won three District and three Section championships in 1955-57. Dick Thompson won three Section titles in 1963-65, and Gail Page, 1957-59, Tony Ross, 1961-62, and Dane Sorensen, 1966-67, won two Section crowns each.

Thompson holds the record of most consecutive wins, 22, most falls in a season, 13, and most career falls, 31. Rich Cummings posted the fastest pin, just 20 seconds after the starting whistle in a 1961 match.

Warren has had two undefeated seasons. The 1953-54 Dragons were 10-0 and in 1959 the Blue and White posted a 9-0 mark. The biggest margin of victory was established in the 1956-57 season, a 52-5 romp over St. Marys.

PART II — Local Government

Con Con Proposals Go to Voters In April Primary Election

(Editor's Note: The Associated Press is examining in a four-part series the issues to be presented to voters at the April 23 referendum by the recently consummated Constitutional Convention).

Part Two — Local Government

By WILLIAM E. DEIBLER
HARRISBURG (AP) — The Constitutional Convention's Local Government Committee produced what already has been called the finest proposal to come out of the 91-day session. Ironically, when the convention began its deliberations last Dec. 1, observers said local government would be one of the most controversial subjects the delegates would have to consider.

In spite of dark predictions of endless strife, the Local Government Committee smoothly and efficiently completed its work in record time. The local government proposal was the first to reach the convention floor. It was debated and given final approval, by a 101-1 vote, in less than two days.

The heart of the proposal is a provision that would extend home rule options to all local government units, from townships through counties. Under the present Constitution, only Philadelphia has the right of home rule, and that was granted through an act of the legislature.

Here are the major provisions of the local government proposal:

Home Rule — All political subdivisions would be permitted to frame and adopt home rule charters, giving the people the power to name their own form of government, subject to local option elections.

Counties — Home rule options would be extended to all counties, permitting voters to establish "strong county governments" if they wish. Surveyors and coroners would be abolished as constitutional county offices, but all other so-called county row offices would be retained. The fee system would be abolished and all county officers would be put on straight salaries.

Options — The legislature would be required to set up optional forms of government for all political subdivisions that do not elect to adopt home rule charters.

Public Defenders — The appointive constitutional office of public defender would be established in each of the state's 37 counties.

Annexation — The legislature would be required, within two years, to adopt uniform, statewide regulations on annexations, consolidations, mergers and boundary changes for all classes of local government units.

Cooperation — Permit the creation of intergovernmental agencies empowered to perform highway, sewage and garbage disposal, and fire and police protection services on a regional basis. The proposal also would permit the creation of new administrative units to handle regional programs.

Area Development — Tied in with a Taxation and State Finance Committee plan, this provision would permit local government units, subject to regulations established by the legislature, to make direct grants and loans to public service, industrial and commercial organizations for redevelopment, reconstruction and rehabilitation projects.

Debt Limits — Present debt ceilings, based on the assessed value of property, would be lifted and replaced by a more liberal formula geared to the annual tax revenue of a local government unit.

In Philadelphia, however, the current constitutional provision limiting debt to 13 1/2 per cent of the average of the annual assessed valuation of its taxable real estate would be retained. The new formula would be applied to the Philadelphia school district.

Apportionment — Local government units with multiple member governing bodies that are not elected on an at-large basis, but by wards or districts, would be required to apportion themselves every 10 years after each federal census.

The proposal requires that apportionment be solely on the basis of population, with districts or wards required to be compact and contiguous in territory and as nearly equal in population as practicable.

Tomorrow: Taxation and State Finance.

THEY COME FROM ALL OVER TO "DON'T DRINK"

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway shows attract customers from near and far, but the boxoffice of "Don't Drink the Water" claims some kind of record for exotic reach.

The comedy now in its second year has drawn orders from Lower Slaughter, Wyre-Piddle, Long Ichington and Oswaldtwistle, all in England. Clum Mhines and Bally-money, Ireland, and on this side of the sea, from Painted Post, N.Y., Correctionville, Iowa, Bad Axe, Mich., Ukulaka, Mont., and Weeping Water, Neb.

Briefs

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Dr. P.K. Sen, who performed the first Asian heart transplant surgery recently on a patient who later died, has received a qualified offer of a heart for future transplant after the donor's death. The condition laid down by the donor is that his heart must not be given to any politician, Sen said.

LONDON (AP) — Twiggy, preening and pruning herself for a film career following her fling at angular fashion-setting, plans a five-day private visit to Moscow, where the weekly Literary Gazette recently called her a capitalist tool and a wrong image for modern youth. She called that critique "a load of codswallop" — translated roughly from the cockney as meaning baloney — and said she had a lot of fan mail from Russians.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — In a statement after a three-day meeting of powerful Indonesian military chiefs, the Jakarta area commander, Maj. Gen. Amir Machmud, reported 15,000 ranking Communist party members continue active in this country and constitute an increasing danger.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Italy has signed the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, which was adopted by the General Assembly on Sept. 21, 1965. Sixty-five nations have signed but only 16 have ratified it. The convention takes effect 30 days after 27 have ratified.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Pacific flag ship cruiser Pozhar-sky, missile ship Gordy and anti-submarine vessel Steregushchy will visit Madras and Bombay, on opposite sides of the Indian subcontinent, in late March and early April, Tass announced. It said the squadron is returning a visit of the Indian cruiser Mysore to the Soviet Black Sea port of Odessa in 1964.

BONN (AP) — The West German government has set up a new authority called the coordinating and Advisory Board for Data Processing, under the Interior Ministry, to study use of computers in government work. A spokesman said only 4.1 per cent of the computers in the country a year ago were in government use.

DiPasquale Acquitted Of Double Murder

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A jury took two minutes Thursday to acquit Anthony DiPasquale in a 1966 double murder at the headquarters of Teamsters Local 107.

"I'm all shook up; I'm dazzled," said DiPasquale, 28, of Philadelphia after the verdict.

The acquittal came a day after the Pennsylvania Supreme Court had refused a request by the Philadelphia's district attorney's office to halt the trial.

The district attorney's office sought to drop the charges against DiPasquale on the grounds its chief witness, David Boyskey, 28, of Philadelphia, said he would refuse to testify because of possible self-incrimination.

DiPasquale was charged with the June 17, 1966 murders of John Gorey, 48, a Local 107 business agent, and Rita Janda, 35, his girl friend. His lawyers demanded he be tried now because he has been in jail for 16 months.

One man was convicted earlier and sentenced to life and another man was acquitted in the slayings.

Tate Says Bill Opens New Era In Solving Housing Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor James H. Tate of Philadelphia said Thursday a housing bill now under consideration would "open a new era" in helping the nation solve its housing problems.

Tate's comments were made before a House banking subcommittee. "The eyes of the nation's disadvantaged are on this committee and the congress."

The measure, he said, "represents a real test of the Congressional will to meet the challenge of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders."

Tate, speaking as president of the National League of Cities, said the bill would:

- Accelerate by 1,000 per cent the rate of construction for low and moderate income housing.
- Materially increase the prospects of low and moderate income families of eventually becoming home owners.
- Turn a government housing program into a national program with private enterprise playing a major role.

Ben Tre Revisited

EDITOR'S NOTE—Amid the ruins of a Mekong Delta community early in February a U.S. major said sadly: "It became necessary to destroy the town in order to save it." He meant that allied bombers, rockets and napalm had to be used to rout Viet Cong from the city of Ben Tre even though civilians suffered and buildings crumbled to dust. This is an up-to-date report on Ben Tre.

BEN TRE, Vietnam (AP) — Ben Tre bleeds in the hot tropic sun, its wounds still bare.

A U.S. officer said Ben Tre had to be destroyed to be saved from a horde of Viet Cong. It took 45 hours of fighting to destroy 45 per cent of Ben Tre, a city of 34,000.

Now, 45 days later, the government has not provided one brick to rebuild the Mekong Delta community.

"Ben Tre is a microcosm of Vietnam now, of the inertia that still lies over most of the country in the wake of the Tet offensive," a senior U.S. civilian observed in Saigon.

In Ben Tre, an American civilian official commented: "In six weeks here we have seen that the government cannot protect the people, or control them, or administer them or help them recover."

"We may well have lost the political war for Ben Tre."

The bleak picture is brightened by one factor, a pioneer do-it-yourself attitude. Some of the population are patching their battered homes together brick by brick. The high school student body has organized a refugee relief force that digs bunkers, washes children and distributes food.

An American official said, "The local people are away ahead of the local government in getting things moving here. The people are our brightest hope." Another official echoed, "The people are our only hope."

The inertia of the Ben Tre administration stems from fear, indifference and incompetence, factors that have adversely affected the recovery of most of Vietnam from the Tet offensive.

The performance of the recovery committee in Ben Tre was lamentable all of February, U.S. officials said. The chairman, a deputy province chief for social welfare, was fired this month and Americans see glimmerings of a bolder approach.

The problems are many. Ben Tre is clogged with refugees, U.S. officials estimate that about 2,500 of the town's 8,000 families are homeless and living in bad conditions. The first priority of the refugees is getting their homes rebuilt.

The allotment of cement per family is 15 bags, when it arrives.

Viet Cong still abound in the area, U.S. officials fear another attack, and the province chief each night draws a ring of armored cars around his headquarters.

Military patrols outside the city itself are just resuming. The U.S. advisers continue thickening their bunkers against renewed attacks.

Should the Viet Cong enter Ben Tre again, the same tactics would be used—artillery and airpower against the town. The one advantage for the population would be that they now have bunkers.

Unemployment In State Lowest for Feb.

Total unemployment in Pennsylvania declined in February to register the lowest February level on record, Acting Secretary of Labor and Industry John K. Tabor announced Thursday.

The number of jobless in February was estimated at 171,000, a decrease of 20,000 from the preceding month.

As previously reported Pennsylvania employment total for January was 4,581,800 which was the highest January in record. February data on employment are not yet available.

The rate of unemployment also declined, dropping from 4.0 per cent of the total civilian work force in January to 3.6 per cent in February. The best previous February level was established one year ago when unemployment totalled 178,000 and 3.8 per cent of the work force.

The decline in unemployment was attributed to employment gains in manufacturing industries. These gains more than offset losses which occurred in construction and retail trade.

The national unadjusted rate of unemployment in January was 4.2 per cent and the seasonally adjusted rate 3.7 per cent.

Warren County Chapter Of CEC Formed This Week

Warren County educators interested in the education of exceptional children held an initial organizational meeting Monday evening at Beatty Junior High School.

Mrs. Gertrude Allenson, president-elect of the Allegheny Mountain Chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) explained the function of the CEC.

Following a discussion, the proposed constitution was adopted. It was voted to name the local group the Warren County Chapter of the CEC. Its purpose shall be to promote the welfare and education of exceptional children and youths.

Court Rules Kelly Can Be Seated

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Could Princess Grace of Monaco run for city council in her native Philadelphia and be elected?

Yes, says Chief Justice John C. Bell Jr. of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court — kind of tongue in cheek.

Bell disagreed with other members of the court who ruled Thursday they can't prohibit the Princess' brother, John B. Kelly Jr., from serving as a councilman. Opponents had challenged Kelly's qualifications on grounds he lives in a Philadelphia suburb, not in the city.

Bell called the decision absurd and said:

"If the Princess of Monaco, with her beauty, charm and royalty, who lived in Philadelphia for many years and whose mother still lives in their family home in Philadelphia, wished to become from her royal palace in Monaco a member of the Philadelphia City Council, the voters of Philadelphia (who in reality hero-worship beauty and royalty) would undoubtedly nominate and elect her, and the young members of City Council undoubtedly would seat such a Queen, even though she was not a resident of Philadelphia for a period of one year before her election, or even a citizen of Pennsylvania, or even of the United States."

The membership is to consist of professional personnel and others interested in the subject.

Temporary officers were elected as follows: president, Tom Socha of Beatty Junior High School; treasurer, Clair Cable of Eisenhower High School; and secretary, Mrs. Marguerite N. Vander Schaaf of Youngsville Elementary School.

The following committees were appointed: nominating, Robert Dibble (chairman), Paul Volkman, Nancy Scott and Judy Findley; membership, Clair Cable (chairman) and others to be appointed; and the social committee, Barbara Soback (chairman) and Mrs. Sue Merlino.

On April 1, the regular spring meeting of the Allegheny chapter will be held at Kane Junior High School. Mrs. Delphine McFate, supervisor of the adolescent group at Warren State Hospital, will speak on her work there.

Tuesday, March 7, the Allegheny chapter will have its annual spring banquet at Jackson Valley Country Club. Dr. John Schell, head of the psychology department at Edinboro State College, will be the main speaker. The new Warren County Chapter, will, it is hoped, be presented at the banquet.

The local chapter's next meeting will be Monday, April 29, at Beatty Junior High School at 7:30 p.m.

Acquitted Murderer Is Shot Five Times

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A man acquitted of murder was shot five times Thursday and admitted to South Side Hospital in critical condition.

Henry L. Serratore, 45, of Pittsburgh's Knoxville section was shot three times in the back, once in the shoulder and once in the hand.

The victim said he was shot as he walked away from a car. The driver had asked him where a street was located, Serratore, quoted by police, said he fell into a snow bank.

Serratore was acquitted of murder Dec. 1 in the fatal stabbing of Dennis J. Farnsworth, 24, of Mount Lebanon in a Castle Shannon tavern. He is still under indictment for manslaughter.

WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER

WARREN, PA., FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1968

POISON PREVENTION WEEK

Miss Wilma Armitage, room supervisor at Warren General Hospital's Poison Control Center, poses in observance of National Poison Prevention Week, March 17-23 and warns parents to observe precautions to save their children from tragedy. Last year more than a million persons were poisoned in this country, of which nearly 600,000 were children. Nearly 500 of these children died. The Poison Control Center is kept up-to-date as to poisons, treatments and antidotes. (Photo by Mansfield)

Take Necessary Precautions: Prevent Accidental Poisoning

Accidental poisoning, especially of children, is a health hazard against which members of the public must largely protect themselves. The week of March 17-23 has been proclaimed National Poison Prevention Week but families should be on guard every day of the year.

Warren General Hospital is one of 128 of the state's 338 hospitals to establish and maintain a Poison Control Center.

The facility was opened in 1962 and its use has continued to increase. During its first year there were 19 calls, with 67 reported in 1967.

According to Mrs. Robert Patchen, RN, who is responsible for keeping the center up to date, the biggest problem locally has been children and aspirin. Another poison danger is placing poisonous solutions in unmarked bottles.

Mrs. Patchen noted one case in which a child drank the contents in a chili sauce bottle that happened to be turpentine. Children, she reminded, tend to associate food or drink with certain containers.

Poison incidents among children usually occur in the 2 to 5 year age group and sometimes even the parents do not know what the child has eaten or drunk. This makes prescribing an antidote extremely difficult if not impossible.

At the local Poison Control Center, located in the emergency area at WGH, children have been treated for taking blood pressure pills, fluid pills, diet pills—even birth control pills. One child found pills in the mother's coat pocket.

Detergents and bleaches stored under sinks constitute a real hazard, the nurse noted.

At the Poison Control Center a card system is in use. White cards spell out the poisonous substances and include key numbers. The numbers refer to yellow cards that indicate immediately the antidote and treatment. The local center annually receives new books and lists updating the types of poison and the antidotes.

WGH categorizes its center in four areas: intentional sedation, unintentional sedation (mostly children), children and aspirin and miscellaneous household products such as Clorox, Drano, and detergents.

The center currently receives one of two phone calls a week, Mrs. Patchen stated, but only those requiring treatment are recorded. Copies of the records are forwarded to the Poison Control Clearing House in Washington, D.C., and to the state level.

Dr. J. E. Thompson is the doctor in charge at the Warren Center.

There are some simple precautions which can be taken in the home to avoid possible tragedy:

—Storage of household cleaning products in locked cabinets and high shelves (children can climb and open doors);

—Keeping household products and medicines in their original containers (storage in a milk or soft drink bottle can prove tragic to both adults and children);

—Storing medicines in a separate location from household products (medicine cabinets are for medicine);

—Also simply turning on a light before giving or taking a medicine. (In the dark can you be sure that's an aspirin you're taking?);

—Referring to medicines by their proper names and not as candy. (Call a spade a spade);

—Dating all medication and flushing old medicines down the drain (wash container and dispose of in a safe place);

—Make sure all products are properly labeled and labels read carefully before each use.

In case of a suspected poisoning, call the Warren General Hospital Poison Control Center, 723-3300 for treatment or antidote.

Pitt. Crimes Jumped 22% Last Year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The FBI said Thursday that major crimes in Pittsburgh jumped almost 22 per cent last year, and police announced two new tactics to try to prevent another rise next year.

One is a task force of specially trained officers to be shifted daily to whatever section of the city that needs it most.

The second is a new division of the city into districts and a computerized patrol pattern that, the department said, "cannot be tracked by criminals."

Public Safety Director David W. Craig said Pittsburgh crime increase, measured by FBI statistics, is under the 23 per cent average for cities of comparable size.

However, he said, "We cannot take much comfort..."

"Therefore, we have been busy developing a new and stronger patrolling system," he said.

Dead Pilot Was Native of Bradford

CHICAGO — A second body was recovered Wednesday from Lake Michigan in a search launched after a private plane crashed Friday, carrying a former University of Pittsburgh chancellor, his family and their pilot to their deaths.

The body of the pilot, James Looker, 51, of Wellsville, N. Y., a native of Bradford, Pa., was spotted by a fire department helicopter about seven miles northwest of Gary, Ind.

Earlier the body of Dr. Edward Litchfield was also recovered but still missing were the bodies of Mrs. Litchfield and their two sons.

PSU Branch Campus Projects To Be Delayed

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Board of Education urged the House Thursday to go slow on appropriating any funds for building projects at Pennsylvania State University branch campuses.

Specifically, the board asked that action be delayed on any branch campus appropriation requests until the results of a study comparing the institutions with community colleges are available.

The request was in the form of a resolution, prepared by the board's Council of Higher Education and unanimously adopted by the full board.

The resolution cited the state's proposed $600 million-plus capital budget for the 1968-69 fiscal year, which recommends that more than $12 million to be appropriated for building projects at eight Penn State branch campuses.

The capital budget bill was passed by the Senate last fall and is now before the House.

The board, in adopting the resolution, pointed out that it had, at the request of Penn State, commissioned Heald, Hobson and Associates, Inc., of New York last year to make an in-depth study of branch campuses.

The results of the study, the board said, should be available about April 1.

The board and Penn State have been embroiled in a long-standing dispute over the expansion of branch campus facilities.

In line with its proposed Master Plan for Higher Education, the board's official policy is that no new branch campuses of existing institutions should be developed because of the competition they offer to the state's new community college program. Penn State has questioned the board's authority to limit the expansion of its system of 18 branch campuses.

The resolution adopted Thursday.

day marked the second time the board has attempted to freeze funds earmarked for branch campus programs.

Last August, the board adopted a resolution urging the legislature to cut from Penn State's 1967-68 budget any funds appropriated for a new branch campus in Delaware County.

The legislature, however, ignored the board's request.

In other action Thursday, the board went on record as opposing a pending Senate bill that would permit county officials to borrow funds for establishing or expanding the branch campus of a state-related university.

The board also opposed a pending Senate bill that would elevate Shippensburg State College to a university.

Damage Totals $500 In Two-Car Mishap

Property damage was estimated to total $500 in a two-car traffic mishap which occurred at 12:40 a.m. Thursday on S. State street in North Warren.

State police trooper Gary L. Rain of the Warren substation said a car driven by Harry R. Calhoun, 12 School st., North Warren, traveling north, partly ran off the road and struck a parked car owned by Elmer H. Jones Jr., of 101 S. State st., North Warren.

Warren County Father, Son Are Reunited in Danang

A Warren County Marine and his father were briefly reunited to add another interesting chapter to the unfolding story of the war in Vietnam.

In July of 1967, Cpl. John (Dan) Barlow of Sugar Grove was notified to board the next helicopter that came in with supplies and head for Danang. Unknowingly the move had started weeks before in Japan where Cpl. Barlow's father, deck officer on a Military Sea Transportation Ship, had contacted the Red Cross while in Japan.

The senior Barlow told the Red Cross that his ship, the S.S. Margaret Brown was soon to be in Danang and requested a reunion with his son then serving in the Demilitarized Zone. Through the efforts of the Red Cross and particularly Al Chozen, Danang field director, this was made possible.

When a helicopter briefly set down on Hill 881, Cpl. Barlow jumped in one side as ammunition was kicked out the other. He was on his way to Khe Sanh airstrip where he caught a plane to Danang.

On the S.S. Margaret Brown in Danang Harbor, there was a knock on the door, according to Dan's father, and a sailor said "Mr. Barlow, you have company."

There in full combat gear and a big grin on his face stood an unbelievably dirty marine who hadn't had his clothes off in 10 days.

It was the first meeting of the two since Dan's Parris Island Graduation Review.

Cpl. Barlow is currently home on leave after 14 months in Vietnam with the 1st Bn., 26th Marine Regiment and is spending his leave visiting friends in this area and also his family in Tarpon Springs, Fla.

A graduate of Eisenhower High School in 1966, the county man is well known in Warren and Chautauque County for his participation in athletics. At Parris Island he finished second in marksmanship and following advance training at Camp Lejeune, N.C. was assigned to Vietnam.

After early search and destroy missions in the Danang area his battalion was sent north to Khe Sanh from where he was airlifted March 1 to Danang. He arrived in the United States March 7.

State Pays $59,810.55 Toward School Lunches

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG — Public schools in Warren County have been paid $59,810.55 in federal funds under the national school lunch and milk programs for the 1966-67 school year, the State Department of Public Instruction (distributing agency of these funds) said yesterday.

Of this total $27,660.84 was applied to the cost of school lunches. Reimbursement under the milk program was listed at $31,562.02. The child care program was paid $567.69.

According to the department reimbursements for school lunches and milk other than that served with the lunch are determined by use of a formula which indicated that the most frequent charge for a lunch to an elementary pupil was 30 cents, to a high school pupil, 35 and about 50 cents to a faculty member.

Reimbursement for milk purchased by pupils was five cents for each half pint, department officials said.

Lunches are served during the current school year in 17 schools and milk is available in 29 schools in Warren County. Parochial and non-profit private schools in the national programs receive reimbursements similar to those to public schools. In these cases payments are made direct by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Grants from federal funds for lunches served in public schools in Pennsylvania in the 1966-67 school year totaled $5,293,416 and for milk amounted to $4,240,521, according to the department.

All She Wants is Quiet In Her Own Home

JOHNSONBURG, Pa. (AP) — A 72-year-old widow and mother of 12 has taken on the huge corporation that dominates this small town in the Allegheny Mountains.

And she has won a legal round.

The story starts three years ago when the New York & Pennsylvania Co., a big paper manufacturer, built a woodchip-ping yard across from the home of Mrs. Antonette Beaver.

The noise, dust, smoke, vibration and general tumult was a overwhelming, she said. "We can't sleep or talk or anything," she said. "When you raise a big family you need peace and quiet."

So she went to court and got the zoning permit revoked. The Zoning Board issued a new one.

So Mrs. Beaver went to the Elk County Court and filed suit against the corporation, a subsidiary of Curtiss Publishing Co. which employs about 90 per cent of the 5,000 men in the borough. That was 18 months ago.

Last week, the court entered a default judgment in her favor when the paper mill failed to answer the suit.

Ordinarily, the presiding judge would call a hearing of all parties to the suit to determine the amount of damages. Mrs. Beaver had asked for $150,000.

However, the company's lawyer, Norbert Pontzer of Ridgway said the legal battle will go on. He said the original complaint was not answered because it was technically faulty. He has filed a petition asking the court to strike the ruling.

Mrs. Beaver said she doesn't understand all the details of the legal fight, which is being conducted by her son, a lawyer living in Chicago.

She has been living on Social Security and the rent from the house next door, which she owns. But it has been vacant for six months, and she says she can't rent it because of the wood-chipper.

"I just want my rights," she said. "My right is to have quiet in my house."

Are Escapees

Two Canadian youths who were apprehended in St. Marys on Feb. 4 are escapees from a prison in Canada, according to word received by Sheriff Raymond Krasinski of Elk County from the FBI. Urban George Mally, 20, of Nova Scotia and William Robert Elliott, 17, of Belleville, Ontario, were recently returned to North Tonawanda, N.Y. on auto larceny charges.

RECRUITING FOR STATE POLICE

A recruiting team was in Warren Thursday to interview prospective cadets in the expanding Pennsylvania State Police force. Lt. Salvatore Rodriguez of Troop E-4, Erie, tests the eyes of David Rydholm of Warren at the state armory. The recruitment program for northwestern

Pennsylvania started Feb. 15 in Bradford with interviews to be conducted today (Friday) at the Holiday Inn in Erie from noon until 7 p.m. Lt. Rodriguez termed the effort very successful both here and in other areas. (Photo by Mansfield)

SOCIAL Wanderings

by Marion Honhart

THE STORY OF GREAT MUSIC was the theme of Junior Philomel's March meeting. They were gathered at the home of their advisor, Mrs. J.H. DeFrees, 414 Liberty street on Wednesday afternoon. Kathy Fritz discussed the Baroque Era, using the Concerto in D major for Flute by Vivaldi and Toccata and Fuge in D Minor for organ by Bach, in illustration. Helen Collins illustrated the Romantic Era with The Hebrides by Mendelssohn. Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet was the beautiful musical illustration used by Debbie Flood in her discussion of the Opulent Era. The program culminated in the discussion of Music of Today, for which Janna Rupp used Appalachian Spring by Copland, and showed pictures interpreting the modern ballet music. The interesting session was the final one for this year, though there will be an informal meeting before summer vacation begins.

AN OPEN RECEPTION is to be held Saturday, March 16, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Swanson who were married on March 6. The affair will take place from 3 to 6 o'clock at the First Church of God on Madison avenue. The bride is the former Marsha Bines. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

THERE'S TO BE A SQUARE DANCE on Saturday, March 30, in the Town Barn on the River Road. It is being sponsored by the Sweet Adelines—Herb Stover will be the caller and Dorothy Engstrom and her Band will be there. It's for the public—and everyone who is interested is invited—Dancing will be from 9 to 12 midnight; tickets are $1.50 per person. The Sweet Adelines will also offer entertainment in the form of singing, and there will be refreshments.

A FRENCH PLAY will be presented by the 6th grade students at the Monday meeting of the McClintock School PTA at 8 p.m. The children have prepared for their parts under their teacher, Paul Mitzabaugh. There will be the regular classroom visitation from 7:30 to 8 before the meeting. All parents are urged to attend what should prove to be one of the most entertaining of the year's PTA meetings. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Anthony Marino and her committee of Third grade mothers.

KATHRYN GRIMALDI, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy M. Grimaldi of 16 Ditmar street, North Warren, a graduate of Warren Area High School in 1967, who was attending Robert Morris Jr. College, was released from Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, on March 9, after a 41-day stay. Kathryn is able to receive visitors at home now, and full recovery from her accident is expected.

FOUR TABLES OF THE HOWELL MOVEMENT were in play at the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. The average score was 18. Honors went as follows: 1st—Mrs. Harold Johnson and Miss Felicia Lucia 22½; 2nd—Mrs. Hazel Shaw and Mrs. Shirl Glass 20; 3rd—Mrs. William C. Fuellhart and Mrs. Albert Lorange 18½. The Woman's Club Bridge will be in session next week at the same time and place.

MINIATURES: The Delta Kappa Gamma Society, Alpha Mu chapter meets for luncheon on Saturday at the Penn Laurel at 1 o'clock. Those who do not plan to attend are to call Miss Martha Bartoo, committee chairman.

"Go" day for taking orders for Girl Scout Cookies is today, . . . and the last day orders will be taken is Saturday, March 23rd. Once again the delicious Burry cookies are being sold in five different varieties; price per box is 50 cents.

Sheffield Twirlettes are holding a fund raising bake sale this Saturday, March 16th, next to the Sheffield Sweet Shoppe from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: One hears so much about drugs and pills and pot these days it is frightening. I'm writing about my 19-year-old college son. I respect his privacy. I don't snoop in his belongings and I don't ask too many questions. But I always go through his trouser pockets and turn them inside out before tossing them into the washer.

Yesterday I came across two little green and white capsules. I had no idea what they were so I asked him. He said, "Oh, those are for when I have to cram for an exam. They help me stay awake." I asked if he got them from a doctor and he laughed. "All the kids get these pills from students whose dads are doctors or mothers are nurses. Free samples, I guess."

When he saw I was concerned he assured me that the pills are harmless and said, "Don't worry!" I AM worried, however, and am asking you to tell me what you know about these pills.

—EASTERN MOM

DEAR MOM: The green and white capsules could be one of a number of things and I hesitate to guess, but they sound like pep pills. This is one of the amphetamines (goof balls) and they can wreck the central nervous system and cause convulsions if taken in excess. Tell your son to LEAVE THEM ALONE.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a stenographer who is employed by a firm of lawyers. Several months ago the firm paid the expenses involved in my becoming a notary public.

Every one of my employers has, at one time or another, asked me to notarize signatures which were affixed to documents at a time when I was not present. This always bothers me but I have been told "It's not important. It's only a technicality. . ."

Today the senior partner asked me to notarize his son's signature. The young man has been out of the city for several days and it would not have been possible for him to have signed it. His name was put on by someone else. It was only an automobile license application, but all the same I felt guilty.

I alone am answerable and I am becoming extremely uncomfortable about these occurrences. Any suggestions?—INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR IN: Tell your bosses that from now on you refuse to notarize a document unless you are present at the signing. You may be canned, but a girl with such sterling character would have no trouble getting another job if her ability matches her integrity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is a lovely woman, 66 years of age, and she has terminal cancer. She knows of her condition but she is cheerful and non-complaining. The doctors tell us she has six months at most and all we can do is keep her comfortable.

A neighbor who was always a gossip and a troublemaker has told several friends and relatives that mother has the kind of cancer that is contagious. For this reason she has had very few visitors. I've telephoned some of these people and tried to explain that this is untrue, but when fear takes over, logic flies out the window. Please say something on this subject.

—GRIEVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: No physician with whom I have talked knows of a single case of cancer which resulted from contagion. A person who would not visit your mother for this reason displays abysmal ignorance.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

March Meeting For Hill & Dale Garden Club

Hill and Dale Garden Club executive members met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Putnam, president, Tuesday.

Plans were discussed on money-making projects for the year. Mrs. Ward Sharp is chairman of the finance committee.

Mrs. Lavern Devore, co-chairman of the annual flower show with Mrs. Dale Skinner, reported the show will be held in the Lander Parish House on August 29.

The theme chosen for this year's show is "Ballots and Blossoms". Mrs. Robert Morgan reported that the therapy group did not go to the state hospital on March 14, but a tentative date of March 28 has been scheduled for the visit.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. Putnam served luncheon to those present.

BPW Dines Out; Hears Guest Speak On 'Social Security'

The March meeting of the Business and Professional Women was held at the YWCA Tuesday evening. A delicious ham dinner was served with the table decorations carried out in a St. Patrick's Day motif.

The speaker of the evening was the Social Security representative for Chautauqua and Warren Counties, Joseph Mallare. Mr. Mallare gave a short history of the idea of Social Security. A plan was first introduced into Congress in the 1890s and was passed but was vetoed by President Andrew Johnson as being unconstitutional. Then came the industrial revolution with its specialized skills and trades and more money. When the Depression hit the country in 1929, people began to be worried.

By 1937, Social Security was a reality. First were the industrial workers; then in 1951 the self-employed entered the picture. Later came the farmers and in the 1950s State employees were part of the ever-growing group. The Medical profession became members of S.S. in 1965. The Federal workers are not eligible still. By now 9½ out of 10 people are under S.S.

Mr. Mallare pointed out that all share the risks. There is no give away. The new disability rates care for the elderly, the disabled and families left without the breadwinner.

He then told about Medicare. Originally it was just for hospitalization. He explained the new amendments which cover disabled widows with children and disabled workers under 31, as well as dependent children.

A very interesting film was shown on Medicare. A "Question and Answer" period followed. After a short business session, the meeting was adjourned.

The Halls Of Ivy

Ann Redding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Redding of 102 Willoughby avenue, is participating in the 1967-68 concert tour of the Kent State University Choir, of Kent, Ohio. Miss Redding, a sophomore, is majoring in Music Education; she sings in the Alto section of the choir.

The concert season began in December and will conclude on May 28. It will cover the home State of Ohio, as well as parts of New York, Massachusetts, Vermont. The final concert back at the university will be the "Theresa Mass" by Haydn.

Dr. Thomas J. Lynch, president of Niagara University, Niagara University, N. Y., announced that 243 students have been listed on the Honor Roll in the College of Arts and Sciences at the university, and of that number, 76 have been honored by being named to the Dean's List for the first semester of the 1967-68 academic year.

Two are from this area: Mark A. Honhart, 305 Fourth avenue, Warren, named to the Dean's List; Ira S. Snades of 39 Abbott road, Bradford, named to the Honor Roll.

Bryant & Stratton Business Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., lists the following students from this area as having achieved the Dean's List for the term ending February 2, 1968: Marcia Chase of Warren, Virginia Kibbey of Pittsfield, Kathleen Barnard of Youngsville and Loretta Ray-

Study Group Now Planning 30-Year Reunion Meeting

Twenty-eight members of the Pre-School Child Study Group were entertained on Monday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Wilbur Swartz on Follett Run road. Plans for the 30-year reunion are now in the final stages.

All members belonging to the club since it was organized in 1938 will receive a letter inviting them to the meeting on Monday, May 13, at 8 p.m., at the YWCA. Mrs. Gary Wareham, program chairman for the event, has announced a special Style Show with clothes by Morrison's for the evening.

Plans are being made for a husband and wife dinner dance on Saturday night, April 20, at the Roman Villa in Bradford. It is suggested that members make reservations as early as possible by calling Mrs. William Stevenson at 723-3404.

The club's main project this year has been helping underprivileged children. The club voted to make Easter baskets and deliver them to the homes of the children.

During the business session, voting took place for next year's officers; their names will be announced at the May meeting. After the meeting, Mrs. Paul McGarry gave an interesting and informative talk and demonstration on the art of making fancy sandwiches. The sandwiches were served for the social hour.

Further Philomel Studies

"Major and Minor Modes" will be the theme of the program arranged by Mrs. Knox Harper, chairman for the Philomel Club meeting in the Woman's Club at two-thirty o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, March 20.

For the first number of the musical program, Mrs. Harry Drivas, accompanied by Mrs. James Potter, will present three songs: "When Children Pray" by Beatrice Fenner, "I Heard a Forest Praying" by Peter De Rose, and "Unforsen" by Cyril Scott.

Mrs. Frederick Olson and Mrs. Ronald Simonsen will play a violin duet entitled "Duo Concertant", composed by Charles de Berliot.

Concluding the program, Mrs. James Potter will be piano soloist in "Concerto in A Major", a composition by Mozart, and Mrs. Joseph DeFrees will present the orchestral accompaniment on the second piano.

Mrs. Robert Trusler will be hostess chairman for the social hour after the program. Her assisting committee will include Mrs. William Ball, Mrs. Shirl Glass, Mrs. Meredith Ginder, Mrs. J. S. Bayer, Miss Ethel Goal, Mrs. James Holmberg, Mrs. Harold Johnson, Mrs. Clarence Pearson, Mrs. Richard Rapp, Mrs. Charles Tranter, Mrs. John D. McFate, and Mrs. W. J. Settle.

Grilled Egg and Cheese Toast: Scramble 1 egg in 1 teaspoon butter; place on 1 slice whole wheat toast; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon grated cheese. Broil a few minutes or until cheese melts and is lightly browned.

Serve broccoli with a flair, topped with tasty lemon butter. Cook two packages (10-oz. each) of frozen broccoli spears according to package directions; drain if necessary. Meanwhile, in a small saucepan, melt ¼ cup of butter; cook over low heat until amber colored. This brings out the wonderful flavor of butter that no other shortening can measure up to. Add 1½ tablespoons of lemon juice. Place the broccoli in a serving dish and pour the lemon butter over the top.

Go continental tonight. Serve a simple yet elegant dessert of fruit and cheese. Remember to include some of the more unusual cheeses, like Gouda, Brick, Blue or Provone in addition to the all-time favorites, Swiss and Cheddar.

It's Cookie Time Again!

The popular Girl Scout Cookies are being sold again, today is the opening day for taking orders. There are five varieties offered, just as last year: Pixies (cocoanut); Scot-Teas (sugar topped shortbread); Savannahs (peanut butter between oatmeal type cookies); Thin Mints; Sandwich Creams (chocolate and vanilla with vanilla centers). The selling price is 50 cents per box.

As the girls in green solicit orders for cookies, they are helping to make camping available to all Girl Scouts through funds raised. The 50 cents per box as follows: Cost of cookies to Scouts—22 cents; camp maintenance and development 20 cents; Cadette & Senior Opportunities 1 cent; profit to troop 7 cents.

Camping is a vital part of the Girl Scout program. More than half of the girls who join scouting do so for the purpose of camping. Here the girls not only enjoy the many wonders of nature but also practice the skills needed to live comfortably in the out-of-doors. Each camper assumes responsibility for camp chores when it is her turn. Through a democratic form of government, she learns to give and take, and how to get along with others.

Campsites and facilities are needed to make camping a reality for the girls. The Girl Scout camps in Penn Lakes Council are in existence today because of public support of the annual Cookie Sales. The Penn Lakes Camps are: Birdcall Edey in Warren County; Happy Acres and Wa-Lu-Hi-Yi in Crawford County; Hawthorne Ridge in Erie County and Camp Rowland in Mercer County. Day camps are operated on nine additional borrowed properties.

Need money? We've got it!

The yellow one means "slow-up"

Somewhere between stop and go there's a time for slowing up... looking around. In traffic lights. And in life. For instance: when you're ready to buy a new car, remember that the total price of your car includes the money it costs you to finance it. Finance for less... your car costs less. That's why so many new car buyers say "I want my bank to handle my financing." They like to save up to $100 (or even more!) on their auto loan. The lower monthly payments are nice, too. When you're ready to buy... pause a second... then say "Call my bank." The words are worth, roughly, $33 dollars each.

Opening lead King of Less reliance on strict percentage tables and a more direct examination of the problem which confronted him might have proved highly refreshing to South, the declarer at four spades.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the queen and ace. South ruffing the third round with the deuce of spades.

A spade was led to the king and the suit was returned.
East played the ten and South—after a brief moment of indecision—put up the ace.
When West showed out, declarer tried to run the heart suit by cashing the king and then crossing over to dummy's ace. He disposed of one club on the queen of hearts as East ruffed in with the queen of spades.

The king of clubs was returned to dislodge declarer's ace, and inasmuch as West retained the ten of hearts as a stopper in that suit—South was obliged to concede the setting trick at the end to East's queen of clubs.

Declarer could have assured his contract against anything short of a very bad break in hearts by taking the spade finesse. The advantage of this play becomes obvious when all hands are exposed to view. There is a sound reason for not trying to drop the queen, however, despite the fact that declarer has nine trumps and the odds slightly favor that play.

Suppose, for example, that the spade finesse should lose to a doubleton queen in West's hand. Now both opponents are out of spades and North's eight becomes a late entry to dummy. If West shifts to a club, South wins the trick with the ace, cashes
the three top hearts—discarding a club from his hand—and then ruffs a heart to establish North's long card in that suit. Dummy is re-entered with the eight of spades and South's remaining club goes on the seven of hearts.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.
FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Re-establish connections that were sound, still are and carry weight. You could err over small details if not careful.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Don't hang on to an out-moded notion, a device made obsolete by newer contrivances. Don't defend a method that needs changing: Your mind is geared for real advancement now.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Meet this day with a determined attitude to see its new possibilities and offers—many to be eagerly grasped. Conferences, agreements need thought, a willingness to see both sides.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—This day asks patience on everyone's part, and if others disrupt procedures, that is all the more reason you should hold your ground. Your dignity will carry weight.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Your planetary influences advise against useless interruptions, a negative attitude, opposing others without reason. A day for exercising tolerance and some old-fashioned common sense.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—With your innate good judgment and clever management, you should do well now. An unusual favor asked of you? If it will truly aid, pitch in with your well rounded capability.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Ask for an accounting where due; give one as readily. This will keep everything aboveboard, as you like it. Inch by inch you can gain and stabilize holdings.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—A continued

search for truth will turn up many unusual advantages and help prepare you for a sturdier way of living. Variety need not mean scattered efforts, but don't stay in a rut either.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—This is no day for vagueness, vacillating, doubting. Adapting yourself to circumstances— even unusual ones—may enable you to benefit in a very heart-warming way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—If you are running into more snags than usual, immediately check, and re-check, if need be. There is no sense in repeating errors. Your intelligence tells you this.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Auspicious influences for advancement. Concentrate on your fundamental purpose and ideas for achieving; tackle some of the big issues; capitalize on your abilities.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—This day should turn out satisfactorily if you are master of your emotions in all situations. Generosity will make you happy, too.

YOU BORN TODAY: You have patience with long, difficult jobs if they are worthwhile, a love of things beautiful, of children, oldsters, animals, the outdoors; could become an outstanding agriculturist, botanist, historian, critic and, though you do not approve of war for war's sake, many Pisceans become military leaders. You clearly see the cause for which to do battle, and will give unstintingly to aid. Teachers are also plentiful in this Sign. Birthdate of: Andrew Jackson, 7th Pres., U.S.A.; Harry James, jazz musician.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

FIRST AID FOR BURNS

A major burn is a serious injury. It may be disastrous, medically and financially. The scars that remain create a multitude of psychological problems. Most of the victims are under 15 years of age because children are more vulnerable to being burned or scalded.

Fire or explosion is the most common cause of fatalities among young children. Toddlers tend to be inquisitive. They overturn containers of hot liquids or are scalded in the bathtub. In the 3- to 5-year-old group, burns from the misuse of fire and matches head the list.

Open heaters, gas stoves, and space heaters account for a high percentage of these accidents. Girls are more likely to suffer burns resulting from ignited clothing. The end result is an extensive and often fatal injury. Dresses and nightwear can go up in flames; the child panics or just stands still because she does not know what to do.

First aid begins with extinguishing the flames. If clothes catch fire, running only fans the flames. The person should not remain standing because the flames and smoke may be inhaled. Rolling in a carpet or applying coats, towels, or bed linens smothers the flames. Ice water is good, but never use an unidentified liquid because it may be flammable. Dirt and sand also help.

Chemical burns from contact with acid or alkali should be irrigated immediately with large quantities of water. Remove any garment saturated with chemicals and jump in a tub or turn on the shower.

Cold water or towels soaked in ice water relieves the pain and is the best first-aid measure. The burned area should be covered with a clean, dry cloth as soon as possible to minimize contamination of the wound and contact with air. Never apply salves or ointments. Soap and clean water may be used to wash away any debris. Critical burns should always be treated by a physician in a hospital.

TOMORROW: An Unexpected Tragedy

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

CAN'T COORDINATE

F. B. writes: Is there any way to develop a sense of rhythm and coordination? I can't learn to type, dance or drive a car. The mechanics of these things are set in my mind but I fail when I try to carry them out.

REPLY

Some people are clumsy by nature; others, by choice. Little is accomplished when they lack incentive. But with proper motivation and practice, the majority can become fairly proficient in coordinating their movements. Now and then clumsiness stems from a neurological disorder such as cerebral palsy.

STONE CUTTERS' LUNG

B. Z. writes: Can silicosis of the lungs be cured? Or can the victim be helped in any way?

REPLY

We have no specific cure but the sufferer can be helped by avoiding further exposure. In silicosis, lung tissue is irritated by quartz or other dusts and the ensuing damage cannot be undone. But the physician has many aids to alleviate discomfort.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—Nervous tension can trigger an attack of asthma.

Tidioute Boro Council Rents Sewer Pipe Cleaning Machine

Whether to rent a water and sewer pipe cleaning machine was the main business of boro council at its Monday night meeting. George Morrison, manager of Tidioute Public Utility System, reported that there are now requests for water service to five cottages and two trailers in Limestone Twp. He stated that the present supply of water in the area is inadequate to supply these places without detriment to some of those presently on the lines. He was asked to contact Chester Engineers for a solution to the problem.

Councilman Fred Barr, speaking for the school district presented a summer sports and recreational program planned for all boys and girls in the area. The program would be supervised by school principal Guthrie with instructing to be done by college students of at least the two-year level. The District wished to know if council would share one-third of the expense or about $450 if the school district contributed the other two-thirds.

Since council already has $500 in its budget, earmarked for the Little League ball club, it said it would be willing to go along with the program if this amount of money could be utilized, and if council could be presented with more of the details and finances of the program.

The auditors report read by secretary Karns was approved. Current bills totaled $221.13. Parking meter collections were $91.13 and fines $41.25.

Senior Class to Present 'Quit Your Kidding'

"Quit Your Kidding" is the name of the play now in rehearsal by the senior high school cast. It has to do with the trial and tribulations of Mrs. Buford, a widow with three children and many unpaid bills. She writes to a wealthy aunt in California for help. The aunt arrives and after her arrival in the East, tells the family she loathes boys and is glad the children are all girls, each of whom she plans to give a check for $5,000.

It so happens that one of the twins "Winston" but called "Winnie", heard of the bequests before the aunt's arrival. Not to be cheated out of a share, he disguises himself as a girl. On the last day of the aunt's visit, she announces that she is ready to hand out the checks. Now she says she is sorry there are no Buford boys, if there had been she would have given him $25,000. To get the outcome — Be sure to go to the matinee, Thursday, March 21, at 3:30 p.m. or the night performance, Friday, March 22, at 8 p.m. Miss Felicia Passaro is directing the play with Eugene Szul as stage director.

The student body enjoyed the glass blowing demonstration given by John Yist, a Holland glass blower from Holland at Monday assembly. Most interesting was the making of a vase from an ordinary light bulb.

Bernard Wingert, Warren County Agr. Extension agent, presented a second assembly this past week. Using a movie, "The Sparks," he detailed the six-county region beautification program.

Members of the Tidioute Key Club and advisor, Eugene Szul are attending a convention in Pittsburgh this week end.

Baptist Women Make Afghan

At its recent meeting at the home of Mrs. Dean Nicholson, the Baptist Women's Missionary Society, out woven blocks for the making of an afghan which will go into the missionary trunk. Each member was asked to bring a donation for the trunk to the next meeting. Mrs. Glenn Barton had charge of the devotions and offered prayer. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Arthur King on April 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Robert Shumaker, of the Association of Baptists for World evangelism, addressed the Baptist Prayer meeting on Feb. 21 following a fellowship dinner at 6:30 p.m. in the church parlors. Shumaker showed slides of Japan which he took on a recent trip there. He will return to Japan as a missionary field worker before Easter. Accompanying him will be his wife and two small children who were with him here.

WCTU to Distribute Temperance Brochures

Four members of the WCTU were appointed by president Mrs. Harriette Courson to distribute 400 temperance brochures in Tidioute churches, schools and local offices. They are: Mrs. Elliot Lanning, Mrs. Dean Nicholson, Mrs. Chester Morse and Mrs. Eugene Sheldon.

Other business of the meeting which took place Tuesday, March 12, at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Virginia Taylor, was a discussion of the needs of veterans for whom the group packs a box each May. Mrs. Arthur King, chairman, said the greatest needs are for sunshine bags in which the men carry toilet articles to the bathroom, bibs, lap robes, white socks, and reading and writing material. Along with these items go scrap books of jokes, poems, pictures and religious material prepared by WCTU members.

Mrs. Chester Morse had devotions using as her theme, "Be Ye Strong." Bible reading was from Chronicles, Chapt. 15, 1-12th verses. Mrs. Dean Nicholson led the group in prayer followed by a salute to the three flags.

During the business meeting there was some discussion about the possibility of Tidioute getting a State Liquor Store, and ways in which the WCTU members could express their disapproval.

Mrs. Dean Nicholson, program leader for the day, called for reports from the eight directors, each of whom is in charge of one of the "Public Opinion" purposes of the group. Mrs. Anna Daehousen gave the closing prayer.

Mrs. Chester Morse will be hostess for the Tuesday, April 9th, meeting.

Tidioute Is Now A Senior Citizen

(Ed. note: Interested readers of early Tidioute have asked the author to name the sites of past industries and tell where owners lived. Next article will be Early Business Establishments.)

By LOIS McCLOSKEY
Far too often we hear residents of this area say, "What is wrong with Tidioute?" "It is dying!" "It is just a ghost town!" "Why doesn't it have some industries so people do not have to commute to work?" There is nothing wrong with Tidioute. It has long since gone through its birth and youth, it became a working man during the lumbering days, many made a fortune when oil was the big commodity. The many thousands of men who labored to build the railroad, the bridges, the steam engines, erect sturdy brick and frame buildings still in use today, and to shoe the wagon and carriage horses are here no longer. Nor would they be needed. But who would rather be living in Pithole which was born and died in one year; Triumph which had a population of 3,000 living mostly in shacks or shanties; or Bucktown or Babylon which are now only names of roads?

Unlike any of these, Tidioute was not a fly-by-night, get-rich-quick town. Before the oil excitement of 1860 Tidioute was but a youth, but it had 400 staunch citizens making a good living in the lumbering business and rapidly building new and better homes and shops. People saved money for there was no "keeping up with the Jones," no automobiles, gas, electricity, T.V.'s, freezers and air conditioners. . . no radios or daily newspapers. There wasn't even a war raging, so life went on at a pleasant pace.

When oil was discovered here in 1860 the pace became hectic. . . the town grew by leaps and bounds to around 10,000 people, most of them came to make money and left as it dwindled.

Now Tidioute became a hard working man to meet the needs of the day. Its first move was to incorporate as a borough to maintain law and order. A railroad started in 1865 to haul oil, brought some 50-60 Irish Catholic families here to build it. While here the men built the first Catholic Church and a school which was operated for just about eight years. By that time the families moved away to work elsewhere.

As early as 1869 Tidioute had a gas plant located back of the present C&M Market. Square wooden pipes were laid to carry the gas. Remains are still to be found today.

Prior to this time the only way to get across the river was by row boat, skiff or ferry. The Lewis family had a plant on Lewis flats and did a huge business in boats. But when the need for a bridge to span the Allegheny became a necessity, local citizens formed a stock company with the Economy Oil Co., located in Limestone Twp. A large contingent of bridge builders completed this first suspension toll bridge. None were needed again until 60 years later when the present bridge was erected in 1933. Now we do not need bridge builders here.

The Tidioute Clay Brick Works at the foot of Morrison Hill turned out bricks for local building from 1870 until we no longer needed brick or brick builders. But today we have evidence of their fine work. Still standing are the Grandin Brick which housed the Grandin Bank, Kemble Drug Store, the early telephone office, and the most modern opera house this side of

Mrs. Christy To Assist With Sport Show

Mrs. John (Catherine) Christy left today (Friday) for Cleveland, Ohio, where she will be assisting with the Canadian-American Sports Show which starts March 15 and lasts until March 25. It is held in the Public Auditorium.

The Kinross Dam Vacation Bureau, of which Mrs. Christy is a charter member, will assist in manning a booth to hand out brochures and give information to visitors concerning vacationing and recreation in Warren and Forest counties, James King, a member of the Bureau and Mrs. King will attend the Show several days.

A member of Bureau members from Warren and from Forest county which joined the Bureau this past year, will attend the Show and assist in the booth.

Woodrow Wilson was the first U.S. president to visit a European country while in office.

Chicago. Later it housed the Gas office in charge of Will Turner, The Tidioute News, a men's club and had some apartments.

In 1877 Isaac Scott, member of the first council built a large business edifice which once housed the Post Office and is now occupied and owned by Mrs. G. B. Chace. The present Vets building was originally the Seeps Oil Company office and bank run by Joe Walters. The Tidioute Bank building is still in good condition as is the office built by the Hunter Lumber Co., and now occupied by George Atkin Jr.

The large brick building occupied now by the Laundromat and Druggan Insurance Co., with apartments on the second floor, was originally a business building. William Dawson, early business man with the Warren-Tidioute Oil Co., had offices here.

With oil drilling, steam engines were a necessity which was met by the Tidioute Iron Works in 1874 on the site of the old Jennings store.

Much of the borough has had running water since 1872 when Luther Green, first burgess of the town, piped water from springs up Tidioute Creek and built a reservoir which still stands high above the center of town. We no longer need men to lay pipe. . . today the water system is operated by three men, just one full time man.

Hundreds of new homes were being built and there was a demand for furniture. A Tidioute Chair Factory, LTD., was formed in 1881 with $100,000 from local men. Three, three-story buildings were erected on the right side of McGuire Run bridge to the end of the ball diamond, while a four-story building was erected on the other side of the street. An overhead tram connected all of the buildings. In its prime it gave work to over 300 men.

The later part of 1898 it became the Simmons, Holdridge & Co., who used two of the buildings for the manufacture of fine furniture. Five years later it became the Tidioute Furniture Co. At the same time part of the buildings were in use by the Tidioute Rocker Co. Both ceased operations when all of the buildings were razed in a spectacular fire in 1917. There was no more work for the many fine furniture makers and finishers in Tidioute.

(The Rocker Co. made mostly porch chairs with cane seats and backs and used women and girls for the caning. We worked there at the age of 13 and earned 10 cents a seat for the caning. It was a stand-up job and hard on tender fingers.)

Furniture making here died with the close of the little factory located in the old Ryan hotel, owned and operated by George Downing. He lived in the house to the left of the school building. The Ryan hotel site is now occupied partially by Fred Benner's Machine Shop.

More and more wagons were needed for hauling, so Edwin Barch started the first wagon factory in 1897 which was located next to the Forsena building, recently razed. Underneath his factory, a Carl King operated a blacksmith shop. Barch lived next to George Downing but moved his plant to Warren in 1911.

Just prior to this in 1885, Joe

Martin started a Hub factory on what is now the site of Wolf's Head Refining. It lasted until 1917. He built and occupied the home on lower Main st., recently owned by the late Mrs. Lily Huntington.

The most famous and colorful blacksmith of the past era was John Gilfillan. He was a water boy in the Civil War and forged part of the equipment used by Col. Drake in the construction of the first oil driller. He died here at the age of 98, and is still remembered by many for his fine rendition of "The Gettysburg Address" at Memorial Day exercises. His shop was near the present Floyd Swanson filling station. Next door Fayette McIntyre, another early blacksmith had his shop.

For years, John ate his meals enroute from the store to the shop. We remember seeing him, a ring of bologna on one arm, a loaf of bread and perhaps a head of cabbage tucked under his arms and a pie on a paper plate in one hand. He feasted on each of these as he walked and consumed everything including the paper plate.

In 1903 Frank Robbins started the Tidioute Mattress Co. Ltd., first in a chair factory building then moved to his new plant near the old hub factory. Most of the employees were women who sewed the ticking, men did the hand tufting. One of them was my late father.

A Union Cutlery Co. was started here in 1885 and occupied a large building and office below the Grandin Brick building. Next to the chair factory it probably had the largest work force of men and women ever to work in a plant in Tidioute.

In 1913, following a strike and lack of additional local funds to operate it, it moved to Bradford, leaving many people out of work. In 1915 the Tidioute Cutlery Co. was started in the old Jefferson st. school building. During World War I it flourished when Germany cutlery was unavailable. It was replaced in 1917 by the Royal Manicure Co., but it lasted only about three years.

One of the very important and flourishing industries during the big oil years was the Grottenberger Machine run by the father and sons Charles, William and George with daughter Julia running the office located in his home. Both the shop and home still stand, the house is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom King. Both are just below the Ryan Hotel site.

As early as 1897 Tidioute had its own creamery making fine butter. It was located on lower Main st., while the Culver Cheese Factory in Slabtown, turned out an excellent variety of cheeses. It was owned by E. A. Culver who had a large grocery store now occupied by King Lumber and Supply.

And so, readers, this is what happened to Tidioute. . . it has become a senior citizen 162 years old who needs to rest in our quiet little town devoid of polluted air, where the ears aren't pierced with the screech of machinery, cranes, lathes and anvils, and the streets and roads not clogged with rushing workers and automobiles.

Let us be thankful that our forefathers planned and built with this pleasant little town of Tidioute for its present 890 inhabitants.

By MRS. HELEN ROBERTS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curtin and their children Robin and John have returned to their home in Chicago after spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Curtin, and to visit Mrs. Dora Curtin, who is a patient at Warren General Hospital. Her friends will be glad to hear there is some improvement in Mrs. Curtin's health.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Henry and some friends, of Greensburg, Pa., were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Leseman for several days.

Mrs. Hildur Wenstran of Ludlow has been a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Ralston and family for several weeks. There is some improvement in her health.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoyer have had word that they have arrived safely in Clearwater, Fla., where they are visiting their daughter and family.

Several robins were seen around town during the spring-like weather before the new snow storm hit here on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie S. Brown entertained at a family dinner party at their home March 6 honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Helen Roberts.

Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conquer and son Larry, Mrs. Roberts and Stan Roberts.

Many relatives of the late Mr. Russ were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hahn Jr. (Mrs. Hahn is the daughter of Mr. Russ) following his funeral Saturday afternoon.

There's No Legal Ceiling To Limit Tax Increases

EDITOR'S NOTE: Money worries ranked second only to the Vietnam war in The Associated Press Managing Editors Association survey of what readers are talking and worrying about. This article deals with a question many editors said their readers were asking: "Is there no limit to taxation?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Americans groaning under steadily mounting tax bills, there's some feeble solace in economists' views that taxation has its limits.

But the solace is mental rather than monetary, for none of the government economists who were asked if there is a limit to taxes was willing to speculate on where the limit lies.

Under the Constitution, there is no legal ceiling on how much federal, state and local governments can collect in taxes from their citizens.

Government economists regard the limit as the point at which private incentive would be destroyed and people would balk at working only to pay a huge share of their wages in taxes.

One economist, declining to be quoted by name, said that fixing the limit is more a question of figuring out how much the public will stand for than a question of social or economic theory.

A breaking point of a political nature already has arrived for some Americans who have said they refuse to pay part of their income taxes in protest against the Vietnam war.

Another economist cited tax-financed programs like Medicare and Social Security as examples of government services which have pushed taxes up but which could not possibly be repealed, tax limit or no tax limit. The experts who help develop the nation's economic policies do not believe the country is yet anywhere near the breaking point—even assuming that Congress approves the 10 per cent tax surcharge proposed by President Johnson to reduce the projected federal budget deficit.

With the surcharge enacted, Americans still would carry one of the lowest tax burdens of any industrial nation.

The following figures for the year 1966 show where the United States stands in relation to the tax burdens in other countries. Expressed as a percentage of the nation's total economic wealth, these are total tax burdens:

United States 27.3
Great Britain 28.6
Italy 29.6
Germany 34.4
France 38.5

Despite lower federal tax rates, America's 27.3 per cent figure is higher than it was during World War II—25 per cent—and during the Korean War, when it was 26 per cent.

The U.S. position in relation to other major industrial nations probably comes as small consolation to the taxpayer, who sees more and more of his dollars pouring into federal, state and local treasuries.

As the federal share has gone down in the 1960s, state and local governments have increased their share. Even though the federal rate has gone down, many people feel they are paying more dollars to the federal government—and they are because their incomes have gone up.

Government experts insist that the high cost of the Vietnam war—and the consequent need for an increase in federal taxes—just represents an interruption in the trend to lower federal rates and not the abandonment of the trend.

The Tax Foundation, a private research group, said the nation's tax dollar was split this way in 1966: 66.5 for federal taxes, 17.9 to the state and 15.6 for local taxes.

COULD BE BIGGEST BATTLE

The battle shaping up around the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh could still be the biggest of the war. Dug out of red clay on a plateau and ringed by high hills, it is 15 miles south of the DMZ and only 10 miles east of the Laotian border. The Khe Sanh stronghold lies directly across the easiest infiltration route into South Vietnam. The airstrip runs east southeast, bottom of photo, to west northwest.

School, Teacher Legislation Will Shove Taxes Up, Up, Up

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Speaker Kenneth B. Lee conceded Thursday that legislation proposing higher teacher salaries and more state aid to local school districts undoubtedly would require additional taxes next year.

But, Lee insisted, without the $500 across-the-board salary increase approved by the House Wednesday and sent to the Senate, the ultimate cost to both local districts and the state would be much steeper.

"Even if we did nothing on salaries this year, based on testimony we received from the school boards, the local tax effort would have to be increased by some 17 per cent," the Sullivan County Republican declared.

"The House Republican leadership believes this new salary bill is the best vehicle conceived to date. It gives all teachers at least a $500 increase next year and pours $54 million into the local districts to finance it. A new subsidy bill (to finance future costs) undoubtedly will go beyond the current revenue structure. But we feel we had to move. The militancy of teachers in Pennsylvania and in the nation indicates that substantial salary increases would have to be enacted by either the state or local districts that exceeds anything required in the past."

Lee had no estimate of what the additional tax burden would be and said it would be the job of the 1968 General Assembly to raise the money necessary to finance both programs.

The new salary legislation, in addition to the flat $500 increase, would raise the minimum statewide starting salary to $5,400 next school year and jump that again to $6,000 in 1969-70.

The state's $54 million contribution envisioned in the House salary bill would cover the first year cost, but would require new subsidy legislation to finance the second and ensuing years. The new formula would not affect Gov. Shafer's no-tax edict for this year because payments to the districts run one year behind.

To criticism that the House GOP was acting expediently to satisfy the teachers and overlooking the long-range impact, Lee replied:

"We are the only ones to date to have a plan. We are convinced that teachers are going to demand the biggest salary increases in history and you just can't saddle this entirely on the local districts."

The House plan will cost $26 million more than the $27.9 million Gov. Shafer proposed for teacher salaries, Lee said. The House Appropriations Committee already has determined where sufficient funds could be reallocated within his $2.1 billion budget to meet the higher price.

One program marked for the chopping block was $5 million for doctoral grants, Lee said, but he refused to elaborate beyond that.

Shafer is less than enthusiastic about the GOP leadership's salary bill since it requires a shift of funds in his budget for 1968-69.

Chamber Warns About Bank Examiner Swindle

The Warren County Chamber of Commerce warned today that the so-called "bank examiner" swindle—a bizarre con game widely used a few years ago to bilk elderly widows of their savings—has cropped up again in some areas of the country.

John Haggerty Jr., first vice president of the Chamber, said the most recent case involved an elderly LaSalle, Illinois, woman who was defrauded of $1,800 by a fast-talking con man who represented himself as an officer of the local bank.

Typically, the victim was led to believe she was helping the bank lay a trap for a dishonest bank employee.

According to the National Better Business Bureau, with which the local Chamber is affiliated through membership, the swindle was widespread two years ago and may be on the rise again.

NBBB, which first exposed the racket in 1964, said the swindlers, generally two or three men working as a team and posing as bank examiners, security officers or FBI agents, choose their victims carefully.

They often spend time in lines in front of bank tellers' windows in an attempt to observe account numbers, withdrawals or deposits of potential victims.

In the case of the Illinois woman, the swindler, posing as a bank officer, used a name that was familiar to the victim and cited the number on her passbook.

Convinced that she was being asked to help the bank in its efforts to check on the honesty of a teller, the woman, following instructions, withdrew $1,800 from her account, took the money home and later turned it over to a man who flashed a gold badge.

The woman was told the money would be redeposited in her account and a new passbook issued.

When the victim finally began to worry and called the bank for reassurance, it was too late.

According to NBBB, the best advice is this:

If you are contacted by a self-proclaimed bank examiner, FBI agent or bank security officer, advise him that will call back. Disregard the number he provides and contact the local police or FBI office and explain why you are calling.

The three principal leaders of the French Revolution were George Jacques Danton, Jean Paul Marat and Maximilian Marie Isidore de Robespierre.

The first U.S. census was taken in March, 1790, and cost nearly $45,000. The 1960 census bill came to $106.43 million.
